Hitler Idol Of Caouette!

MONTREAL (CP) — Real Caouette, deputy national leader of the Social Credit party, is quoted in Le Magazine Maclean as saying that his political heroes are Mussolini and Hitler.

In an article by Helen Pilote in the current issue of the magazine, Mr. Caouette was asked: "Who are your political heroes of history?"

He replied "Mussolini and Hitler," and added:

"Fascism, like socialism and communism, is a dictatorship. Social Credit seeks the liberty of the individual. I admire Mussolini's quality as leader and I regret that he was a Fascist. I admire in Hitler his economic reforms and I consider that he brought his people out of misery. I regret that he employed for war instead of for peace the ideas which he had."

"As for their dictatorial struggles and their racial struggles they have never been an example for me," he added.

"During the depression years," he said, "while we in Canada were in economic misery, these men brought prosperity to their countries."

"There is no question for me of admiring their racial policies. The extermination of Jews, for example, was anti-Christian. There is no question of following such policies."

A-Subs Rendezvous

Historic Meeting Beneath the Pole

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy announced yesterday two United States submarines have completed a "historic rendezvous" under the North Polar ice cap. He said he wanted to congratulate all involved in the feat.

France Joins Space Race

PARIS (UPI) — France plans to join the space race, the government announced last night.

Information Minister Alain Peyrefitte said France is scheduled to place a 150-pound satellite in orbit in March, 1965. It will be followed shortly by others three and four times as large, he said.

Army Fights Fires

MARSEILLE, France (Reuters) — Reinforcements were rushed here Wednesday to aid 2,000 troops and firemen battling fires to the east and north-west of Marseille that have destroyed hundreds of acres of forest, three small houses and several shacks.

Firefighting headquarters said the worst outbreaks had been brought under control but they feared new outbreaks should hot, dry wind begin to blow.

Eastward, along the Riviera, another fire stopped vacation traffic on La Route Napoleon. Smaller fires raged near the town of Collobrières, and paratroopers joined firemen fighting fires since Tuesday night in the western Pyrenees near Saint-Michel de Cuxa.

Assassins Fail In Attempt On De Gaulle

PARIS (AP) — Machine-gun bursts fired by assassins from ambush in a quiet Paris suburb shot out the rear window and two tires of President de Gaulle's speeding car Wednesday night, but he and his party escaped unharm.

Two vehicles and gunmen at the roadside figured in the assassination attempt against the 71-year-old president, police said.

De Gaulle was showered with splintered glass when one of the estimated 120 to 150 bullets fired at his car smashed the rear window. Another bullet drilled a hole within inches of where the president usually sits, the interior ministry reported.

In all, six bullets were reported to have hit the presidential car.

The interior ministry said in a statement to reporters that splintered grenades and incendiary grenades were found unexploded at the scene of the attack.

CROSSFIRE
The ministry said bursts of gunfire came from two cars parked on opposite sides of the road, catching de Gaulle's car in a crossfire, and witnesses reported there were several gunmen on foot firing from behind the parked cars.

Elysee Palace, the presidential residence in the heart of Paris, late Wednesday night issued a communique saying:

"Several bursts of gunfire shattered the rear window (of de Gaulle's car) and shot out two tires."

"We can only assume the attack was made by the European Secret Army," a police officer said.

The Secret Army Organization has been blamed for previous assassination plots designed to block de Gaulle's successful campaign for Algerian independence.

FOURTH ATTEMPT
The interior ministry announced that gunmen fired three bursts at the presidential sedan carrying de Gaulle, his wife and son-in-law to an airport outside Paris.

It was the fourth reported assassination attempt against the French president in less than a year.

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberal Leader Pearson attacked the stand of the Social Credit and New Democratic parties against an early election Wednesday, saying they appear to be looking for ways and means of keeping the Conservatives in office.

Mr. Pearson issued a statement commenting on a press conference given here Tuesday by T. C. Douglas at which the NDP leader said the general public would resent the opposition groups precipitating an election.

WON'T FORCE VOTE
Only last week, Social Credit leader Robert Thompson said his group would not force an election this winter.

"I have noted with interest," Mr. Pearson said, "the press conference at which Mr. Douglas expressed the wish of the NDP to avoid an early election, an attitude which could contribute to keeping the present minority government in office."

"The position of the Liberal party remains unchanged."

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Acting Secretary General U Thant yesterday submitted a budget estimate of $68,649,500 for the United Nations for 1963.

The estimate represented an increase of $4,004,700 above appropriations for 1962.

Thant reported a UN deficit of $111,000,000 at the end of 1960, when cash resources amounted to $14,000,000 and total liabilities at $125,000,000.

They came ashore at the town of Dore after a 23-mile sail down the squally Loch Lomond from Scotland's fabled Loch Ness monster.

One Dies At Train Crossing

EDMONTON (CP) — One man was killed and 17 persons injured Wednesday night when a CNR diesel train smashed into a three-ton dump truck at a municipal road crossing about six miles northeast of here.

RCMP at the scene withheld the name of the dead man. They said he was from another country and was the driver of the truck. The truck bore no company name.

Police said they believed none of the injuries was serious.

Twisted metal and other wreckage was scattered in a 50-yard radius and the trucks were torn from their ties. The train left the tracks and was tilted at a 45-degree angle.

"I don't know what had happened at first," said eye-witness Ernie Kowalek, 37, of Edmonton. "Then I saw police helping passengers from the overturned train. Those people were awfully lucky it didn't right over."

The single-car rail unit lay diagonally across the tracks as the injured were moved to a bus and ambulances which brought them to Edmonton hospitals.

BETTER AS CURE
It would probably work better, therefore, as a cure than as preventive medicine.

Interferon was discovered by Dr. Isaacs and a colleague, Jean Lindenmann, during experiments with monkey gland tissues in London's MRC Hill Laboratory in 1957.

CONSIDER TREATMENT
Dr. Isaacs said experiments have just been started with interferon on the common cold. If they seemed to work, he would study the possibility of using interferon as a treatment.

Dr. Isaacs and Danyz Blaskovic of the Bratislava Virology Institute in Czechoslovakia said studies indicate that interferon is produced by a wide range of virus infections.

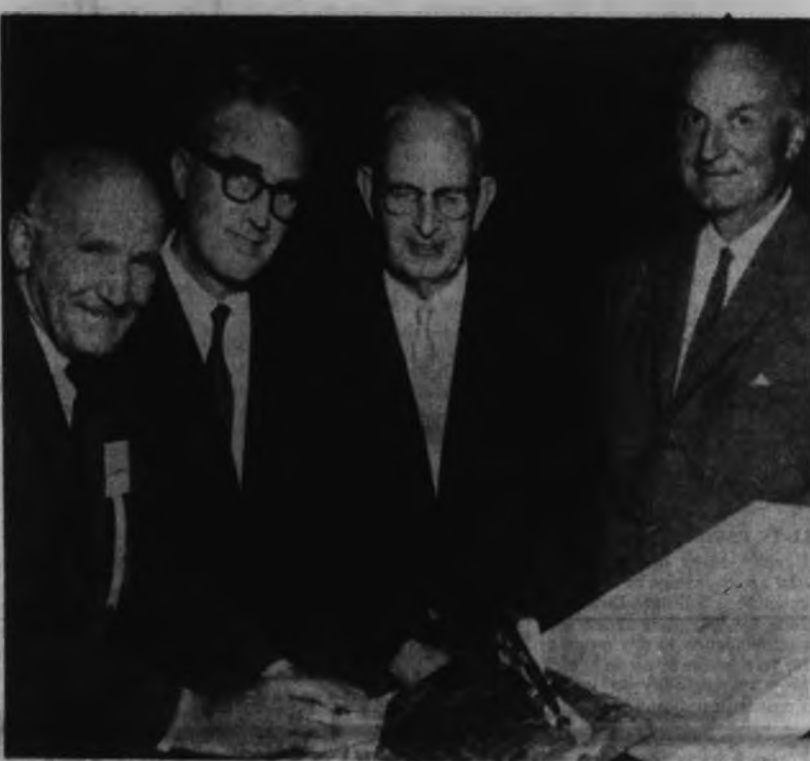

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Four workmen were killed Wednesday when a series of explosions jarred a sewer tunnel 40 feet underground.

Firemen, probing through dense gas fumes, believed responsible for the blasts, recovered the torn and burned bodies of two of the diggers by noon. The firemen inched their way through the narrow, 20-foot tunnel to recover the other bodies by mid-afternoon.

Authorities said they believe the fumes came from petroleum products which had soaked into the ground over the years. The area is near several petroleum company storage yards and refineries in an industrial section of south Philadelphia.

Dog Attacks

'Cure' Gets Chance To Conquer Cold

MONTREAL (CP) — Science, still looking for ways to fight the common cold, is giving a substance called interferon a chance to show what it can do.

British Scientist Alick Isaacs said Wednesday at the International Congress for Microbiology that interferon seems to give only short-term protection, however, in the early stages of a virus infection.

It would probably work better, therefore, as a cure than as preventive medicine.

Interferon was discovered by Dr. Isaacs and a colleague, Jean Lindenmann, during experiments with monkey gland tissues in London's MRC Hill Laboratory in 1957.

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP) — An RCMP Golden Hawk's Sabre jet travelling at 450 miles an hour struck an iron pole here Wednesday in full view of 30,000 spectators at an air show.

The plane, only slightly damaged, was brought safely to the ground immediately after the incident by pilot FR. L. Norman Carriock of Vancouver. He was uninjured.

The RCMP said an investigation has been launched and recommended FR-42 Carriock for retaining control of the jet fighter after it struck the 30-foot staff stop on airport buildings.

Enough Smallpox Serum For 15,000 in Province

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia now has enough smallpox vaccine to protect 15,000 persons as a precautionary measure because of the scare created by the illness of 14-year-old James Orr.

Eight more persons who travelled on a train with the family of the Orr boy have reported to health authorities, bringing to 10 the number of British Columbians involved.

Church Members Go Underground

BENSON, Ariz. (UPI) — or those that might know Residents of this little town Wednesday reported members of Full Gospel Assembly Inc. had gone underground in the way they did two years ago to escape nuclear destruction.

It was estimated that perhaps 100 members of the church had taken to individual shelters built in a colony on the north edge of town.

But no one knew the reason why.

Bad Cold Sidelines Visiting Princess

DUBLIN (Reuters) — Princess Margaret cancelled plans to attend an agricultural show at the market town of Birr Wednesday amid speculation that she is expecting her second child.

An official at Birr Castle said Margaret had to cancel the arrangements because she had a bad cold.

Birr Castle is the home of the Earl of Rosse, stepfather of Princess Margaret's husband, the Earl of Snowdon.

MORAL RIGHT
Among other matters arising at the press conference:

Foreign aid — A reporter asked whether countries which receive aid from the United States have a moral right to engage in business deals with Communist bloc countries.

Kennedy said there are countries receiving U.S. aid which also receive aid from the Communists, and he said it was not a moral issue, but one of judgment. In that connection he mentioned India and called it an extremely important free, non-Communist country.

SEE KHURUSHCHEV?
Khrushchev — Asked if he could see Premier Khrushchev, in event the Soviet leader comes to the United Nations session in New York this fall, Kennedy said he had made no plans but would hope to talk with him in such a case. He added that he considered it a good idea for heads of state to maintain relations.

Two juveniles questioned Tuesday night by Saanich authorities admitted breaking 10 windows in St. Aidan's Church Saturday night. (See story on Page 19.)

Police said the boys, aged 9 and 10, were in the church when the windows were broken.

A total of 133 windows were broken altogether in the Saturday night vandalism raid.

Smoke Board Takes Step To 'Retire' Inspector

A week after severe criticism was levelled at city smoke inspector Thomas Walker, the city's smoke advisory board took steps which will likely result in forced retirement for the official.

The board unanimously recommended to city council that a full-time smoke inspector should be employed. City council is expected to approve the recommendation at its meeting this afternoon.

Mr. Walker, 76, is beyond the city's compulsory retirement age for employees. He has been acting in a part-time capacity since his appointment in 1956.

Smoke board chairman Ald.

Geoffrey Edgelow levelled criticism at Mr. Walker at a board meeting Aug. 14.

"As an employee of the city at a public meeting I don't think it is proper for the smoke inspector to give any sort of allegiance (to industry) in this matter," Ald. Edgelow said.

"I might even use the term to hinder progress . . . to be too soft."

LACK OF ENFORCEMENT

Oblique criticism was levelled again during yesterday's meeting. A letter from E. P. Hudson, for Stewart and Hudson Ltd., included:

"For a long time we have felt there was a real lack of enforcement. We had a feeling that the inspection department favored the offenders. . . ."

"For this reason alone it is absolutely necessary that the smoke and pollution inspection be maintained on an efficient basis."

ALL IN FAVOR

Each member of the smoke board spoke briefly in favor of appointing a full-time inspector before they voted to make the recommendation to city council. No reference was made to Mr. Walker's ineligibility to retain his post on a full-time basis.

Merger Vote For Bowness

CALGARY (CP)—The town of Bowness will let voters decide in October's civic election whether they want to have the functions of town council and school board merged. Under the urban county system of government members of both bodies would form the council. A majority "yes" vote would make Bowness the first municipality in Alberta to adopt the system.

No Obligation CPR's Stand

Maverick city alderman Geoffrey Edgelow angrily charged yesterday that the CPR has at least a moral obligation—and possibly a legal obligation, too—to provide ferry service between Vancouver Island and the mainland.

His charge followed close on the heels of a statement by CPR general manager J. N. Fraine that the company had met all its obligations on Vancouver Island.

'OWE MILLIONS'

"Morally, they owe the Island millions of dollars over and above anything they have given us," Ald. Edgelow said.

"They have cut the service between the Island and the mainland to one boat a day but they are holding on tightly to their $100,000,000 pot on the Island."

Ald. Edgelow was referring to a 150-mile-long strip of Vancouver Island originally granted to the E & N Railway Co. but acquired by the CPR when it bought out the E & N company in 1905.

CONDITION

"The land grants, according to the record, were given to the E & N all right, but they were also going to establish boat service."

"To my interpretation, provision of a boat service was one of the conditions of the grant."

Ald. Edgelow refused to accept a CPR claim that the company has no legal responsibility to provide a ferry service for the Island.

"I want all interested people to write to the CPR and the editor of the Colonist to express their opinions," he said.

SUPPORT NANAIMO

Nanaimo has a committee at work and I think we should support them."

Mr. Fraine's statement earlier yesterday contended that the provincial government grant to the E & N company was an inducement to the company to build, maintain and operate the railway, together with a telegraph line.

"The Act also authorized that company to extend its rail lines to Victoria and Courtenay and provide steamship services," Mr. Fraine said.

"However, there was no obligation to do so in either case. Over the years, 75 per cent of the original lands have been disposed of and the people of Vancouver Island as a whole are benefiting from the forest industries established in these lands.

CAPABLE SERVICE

"The (B.C.) Toll Authority is operating a service capable of handling all of the Vancouver-Nanaimo ferry traffic. . . ."

Mr. Fraine denied his statement about the government's Vancouver-Nanaimo service was a suggestion that CPR planned to withdraw completely from the run.

Mr. Fraine visited Mayor R. B. Wilson at city hall yesterday morning. Later, Mayor Wilson wrote to Mayor Pete Maffeo of Nanaimo, expressing concern at reduction of the CPR service.

POSITION CONFUSED

Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston said yesterday the provincial government checked into the original land grant agreement about a year ago and found the legal position confused.

He said the E & N company was given $750,000 and a 2,000,000-acre land grant as an inducement to build the railway with power to extend it to Victoria and Courtenay and to add ferry connections to the mainland, but added:

"The legal position appeared unclear as to the duration of their obligation when we looked at it. . . . Was it forever and a day? It wasn't clear."

Albertans to Hear Of Island Winter

A bid to lengthen Vancouver Island's 1962 tourist season will be made in September by the B.C. Toll Authority which is arranging a goodwill tour to Alberta.

A party of 30 civic, business and tourist officials from all parts of the Island will visit Calgary, Lethbridge, Medicine Hat, Red Deer and Edmonton on the five-day tour.

COME IN WINTER

They will try to talk the Albertans into coming here for winter holidays, said tour organizer Ronald Worley, assistant general manager of the B.C. Ferry System.

"We can sell them on the idea that the Canadian dollar is worth more in Canada and that with the austerity program in force Canadian dollars should be spent in Canada this year," he said.

SELLING POINT

Another selling point will be that prairie travellers can reach B.C. by an all-Canadian route with the driving time cut by one day because of the new Rogers Pass.

The tour will leave Vancouver Island in two groups Sept. 4, one from Victoria and the other from Nanaimo. They will link at Tsawwassen for the trip to Calgary and spend the first night at Kamloops.

The Alberta government will join the city of Calgary in hosting a luncheon for the

Low-Starch Diet Important To Correct Low Blood Sugar

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

"Dear Dr. Molner: for several years my sister has been treated for a specific colon. Several months ago the doctor put her on a diet without starch, saying she had low blood sugar. This follows the diet pretty well but will not give up coffee and cigarettes from morning till night. It was after my sister had spells of blindness that the doctor put her on the starch-free diet—ANXIETY."

Low blood sugar isn't a disease in itself, it's a reflection of other disorders that cause the drop.

Nor is it the opposite of diabetes, even though it is true that in one the blood sugar becomes too high, in the other too low. Diabetes is a distinct disease. There is insufficient insulin to make use of the sugars in the food, and either insulin (or sometimes drugs) must be used to help keep the sugar level down, or the diet must be restricted, or both. Otherwise the excess sugar quickly becomes dangerous.

SUGAR NEEDED

With low blood sugar, it is a matter of the blood sugar at times being used up—and the sugar is needed to provide energy.

Low blood sugar is often seen in nervous, tense individuals, which appears to fit with your sister. Coffee and tobacco contribute to her nervous attitude as well as to aggravate the spastic colon.

The low-starch diet, with high protein substituted, is important because the protein is absorbed and turned into blood sugar slowly.

But one can't successfully tinker with the blood sugar level without doing something about the psychic or nervous irritability.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Can virginity be lost any way other than through sexual intercourse? Please explain anatomical virginity. Please answer this, it is very important.—Q.Q."

In medical terminology, virginity means there has been no sexual intercourse. By anatomical virginity, you probably refer to a rupture of the hymen (or membrane), from other causes. Strenuous activity, injury, necessary examination can do so, and many virgins have had it happen.

Note to Mrs. M. R.: Bee stings can at times be truly dangerous if a person is sensitive to the venom. A gentleman who raises bees recently wrote me a most interesting story. He had been stung many times over a period of years—but the last time he almost lost his life. He had, for some reason, finally become sensitive.

Anglicans Strive To Disappear!

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP)—The opening message Wednesday to the 21st general synod of the Anglican Church of Canada forecast Anglicans will vanish.

Rev. Stephen F. Bayne, executive officer of the Anglican Communion, told more than 300 clergy and laymen from across Canada that Anglicans as a division of the Christian Church "should disappear and we are disappearing" under gradual pressure of measures to unite the church.

ACCIDENTAL

The speaker, former Episcopal bishop of Olympia diocese in Washington State and based in London, England, for the last three years on a roving mission of liaison, said Anglicans are "an accidental historical configuration" resulting from division of the church in the Middle Ages. "It is hard now to define the Anglican Communion... our unity is not cultural or denominational or confessional."

Red Experts Pouring Into Cuba

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy said Wednesday there is evidence that the Communist bloc has sent large numbers of technicians and supplies to Cuba. He said the U.S. government now is studying the matter.

Questioned at a press conference, Kennedy confirmed previously published reports that as he put it—rather extensive quantities of material and men have been arriving at the Caribbean country from Communist lands.

The president spoke of "technicians," not troops, and added that there is no evidence that Cuba is mounting preparations for an invasion of another country.

Other U.S. informants said that between July 21 and 27 an estimated 3,000 - 5,000 technicians arrived in Cuba aboard five passenger vessels from Communist bloc countries.

"Nor will we be satisfied until there is nothing left which can be called Anglican at all... the Anglican Communion in our eyes is only a fragment of that full Communion which must some day hold all Christians together."

Bishop Bayne said the Anglican unit already is disappearing in Asia, where the Church of South India combines various Protestant denominations.

Indonesia Frees Soldier of Fortune

WASHINGTON—American soldier of fortune Alan Lawrence Pope was released July 2 from an Indonesian prison where he was serving a life term and was whisked secretly back to the United States, the state department disclosed.

The 33-year-old Homestead, Fla., flier was shot down and captured in 1958 while piloting a bombing and strafing mission for rebels against the Indonesian government.

At his 1960 Jakarta trial, he was sentenced to death for "assisting an enemy of Indonesia in wartime." But Pope's punishment was changed to life imprisonment on Oct. 22, 1961, when Indonesian President Sukarno commuted the death sentences of all rebels.

YORK, England—Lord Russell has vetoed proposal by members of his ban-the-bomb movement to throw themselves in front of the horses in the £10,000 Ebor Handicap race here.

ALLISTON, Ont.—The desperate efforts of a huge search party failed again to uncover the whereabouts of 10-year-old kidnap victim Thomasina Baker.

John D Off to UN?

OTTAWA (CP)—Political and commercial international affairs are attracting government attention before the scheduled opening of Parliament Sept. 27.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker indicated Wednesday he may go to the United Nations General Assembly session in New York late next month to sponsor a resolution calling for free elections in Soviet satellite countries.

He told reporters he would consider doing so if Premier Khrushchev attends the General Assembly meeting, but at the moment reports of the Russian leader's plans are contradictory.

Mr. Diefenbaker is to leave here Sept. 6 or 7 for the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference due to start in London Sept. 10. The General Assembly meeting in New York opens Sept. 18, the day before the expected close of the London talks on Britain's proposed entry into the European Common Market.

Meanwhile, Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton told reporters he hopes to make a flying trip to Poland, Yugoslavia and Czechoslovakia in September before Parliament opens. He hopes to complete negotiations for a long-term wheat agreement with Poland and sell grain to the other two Iron Curtain countries.

Mr. Hamilton said he is awaiting reports on the current wheat harvest in Western Canada before making a definite decision on the selling trip. He wants to be assured first that Canada will have sufficient supplies to meet the quantities which might be involved in sales to the three nations.

Fallout-Free Food For Cows—Indoors

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—A drive to reduce fallout radioactivity in milk by taking cows out of pasture and feeding them stored feed is bringing a "good response" from dairy farmers in Minnesota and western Wisconsin, an official of the Twin City Milk Producers said Wednesday.

Producer participation is voluntary. The dairy industry in Minnesota has recommended that all cows producing milk for grade A and ungraded human consumption be taken off pasture lands and fed only feed that has been stored for at least three weeks.

His Valid Role

BECAUSE the Diefenbaker government won't have a clear majority in Parliament the Social Credit leader, Mr. Robert Thompson, argues that a four-party delegation should attend the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference in London next month. Perhaps he has a vision of himself gaining attention at Westminster.

He overlooks the fact that the gathering is to be one of prime ministers, not a convention of differing political groups from all over the Commonwealth.

Mr. Thompson says Mr. Diefenbaker doesn't have a mandate to attend the conference alone. If he hasn't we don't know of anyone who has. Certainly Mr. Thompson, with a mere 30 seats in the House of Commons, has no mandate to speak in any breath for Canada at a gathering of Commonwealth statesmen. Nor on the basis of constitutional practice do the other opposition party leaders.

It seems to irk the opposition groups immensely but the fact remains that Mr. Diefenbaker is the prime minister of this country and therefore its chief voice in national affairs. He was not removed from office by the result of the June election, which although indeterminate by more usual party standings left him as the leader of the largest party in the House. He thus won a greater vote of confidence from the Canadian people than did any other party leader in the country.

Disappointed political chieftains seem too ready to forget this, and that Mr. Diefenbaker retains all the constitutional rights of his office unless Parliament votes to reverse the mandate given him, slender though it may be.

Parliament will be in a better position to weigh the merits of the situation when Mr. Diefenbaker returns from the prime ministers' conference with a full knowledge of the Common Market problem, the chief subject to be aired at the conference, and the position as it affects Britain's decision to join or not join the EEC and the views in relation thereto of the Commonwealth countries. Only this conference will clarify matters so that Parliament may be able to judge exactly the effect on Canada's future.

When properly informed Parliament can then sustain or defeat the Diefenbaker government as it desires. Debate beforehand on the subject would be premature and fruitless. That is why Mr. Diefenbaker is going to the conference, in his valid role of prime minister of the country.

Fifty Years On

ESQUIMALT has joined in the civic centennial celebrations, still going on, but this week it marks a special date of its own—the fiftieth anniversary of its incorporation as a township. It is a golden jubilee of consequence.

The youngest of the municipal components of Greater Victoria as a corporate body it ranks next to the city itself as a settlement; its harbor of "shoaling waters" is part of the early history of these parts. And it continues as an important and integral segment of local activity.

Esquimalt pursues its affairs quietly but under its enduring reeve nonetheless effectively, showing a fine community spirit and within the compass of its possibilities moving progressively forward. It was boldness and vision for instance that enabled it to build the handsome sports centre of recent vintage, now an asset of value to the Victoria area. Its close liaison with the RCN makes it a contributing factor to the common weal of the whole community.

The township has arranged a suitable program of events to mark its 50 years of progress, and citizens of all four municipal groupings will join in the celebrations. Administratively the Victoria area may be split four ways but it is one in the general sense of community living. Esquimalt's birthday is therefore one to be shared by all, and happy returns of the day go out to it from each of its neighbors.

The day will come probably when all four components become one, but meanwhile congratulations are in order for this sturdy partner of the Victoria scene. May it continue to flourish as it enters upon the second half of its official century.

A Poor Economy

DISTURBING problems loom for city council in proceeding with construction of two parking buildings under the borrowing bylaw approved last year by downtown property owners.

If, as now appears likely, the total cost of acquiring the necessary land and erecting the buildings as planned exceeds the $1,115,000 authorized, council's choices seem to be to ask the downtown ratepayers to approve further borrowing, to ask the cabinet for power to borrow the needed sum without going back to the property-owners, to build lesser facilities than originally proposed, or to take the money from general revenue.

Unhappily none of these courses can be regarded as entirely fair, for in none of them would council be meeting the commitments laid down or implied in the narrowly-approved bylaw.

Certainly, however, now that the contract has been awarded for the construction of the first building, the city must regard itself as obliged to build the second, serving a different area, to the full measure originally proposed, for as Acting Mayor Arthur Dowell has noted, the property-owners in this area are paying for the project, too. Equally certainly, there is not much sense in paring the cost of the first, four-story structure by omitting an elevator (even though this can be added at a later date) and thus reducing greatly not only its utility but undoubtedly also the amount of parking revenue it can be expected to earn—revenue which will make the difference between a light or heavy tax burden on this account for the downtown ratepayers.

Possibly the whole project can yet be completed within the authorized sum. That should be known before many months have elapsed. But meanwhile, it would seem sensible for council to restore the elevator to the contract for the first building anyway, and if the small sum of $28,000 for this essential appendage should have to come from general revenue it is hard to believe that city taxpayers would strongly object.

"That's 113 orbits. We've topped Nikolayev and Popovich."

Thinking Aloud

"... of shoes, and ships, and sailing war..."

By TOM TAYLOR

SINCE I am a loyal sports enthusiast, even if vicariously and even if some mornings I forget, I like to glance over the athletic pages and see how the games players are doing.

And what a collection. A true follower has to have a wide catholicity of interest. There are the Shamrocks, for instance, and the Lions and the Yankees and the Pakistanis all vying for major notice, not to speak of the Spurs and Stan Leonard and tennis players, runners, local cricketers and bowlers, and a calendar of other pursuits.

And soon ice hockey will be with us in a new spurge of headlines and, in our own close domain, the soccer crowds will be gathering.

Prince Philip may not think so but there's a mighty well of physical depth being plumbbed. For all these games have their pony leaguers or aspirants. Only this morning five boys and one girl—a Babe Didrikson in embryo, perhaps—came under my scrutiny on a nearby playground; and not even the Los Angeles Angels could take baseball practice more seriously.

The future, as a TV ad says of something or other, is in good hands.

Mention of the LA Angels is a reminder of the delightful nomenclature that sports co-opts to its use, even if the conjunction may be startling. Thus we have tigers, shamrocks, lions, maple leafs, sox—white and red—comets, stampede, eskimos, indians, firefighters, senators, pirates, bruins, et al—all playing games, one against the other.

And there are milers and marathoners, golfing "greats" and bike riders, boxers and swimmers—all demanding a place in the sun. Truly the sports page is a remarkable tribute to the versatility of the human race.

Except that one develops a knack of absorbing all these varied realms with instinct, a man would have a hard job keeping up with them.

At the moment I find myself preoccupied with the Lions, the Vancouver Lions, that is. There are others of the breed somewhere in some arena but it is the chaps across the street who momentarily engage my interest. Forgetting the civic rivalries that exist I am wishing them well. They have been dormant so long, emulating the recumbent stone images which seemingly have a sinister influence over them, that their opening gambit in the western football conference is encouraging.

I confess it takes more than neighborliness to say this. I have first of all to overcome a bias against a game called football which sees very few feet put to the ball, my view being being to the contrary, and secondly because I cannot claim to be a knowledgeable fan. This alone invalidates my opinion on the subject.

Not but what a little close scrutiny of the game, either from the sidelines or via the video camera, does not open up wide areas of understanding. One need not know all the fine points of a game to appreciate what it's about. The general idea is quickly grasped.

And I have to admit that this kind of football is too slow a game for my preference. Games played by numbers never whet my enthusiasm and a minute's play followed by a minute's pause is not exactly my notion of a sport. That is why I like the fluid, individual play in games like hockey, soccer and lacrosse.

But to the players and the real fans, those to whom the result is of vital importance, all games have appeal. None of them would be played, did it not. And so keep going, Lions. You deserve a year where you may strut with the majesty befitting your name.

What of the Brave Words?

By MARQUES CHILDS

WHETHER the competition in space between the United States and the Soviet Union has now become merely an advanced phase of the military rivalry between the two nuclear giants is a question with loud and ominous echoes in the aftermath of the latest Soviet exploit.

In February, following John Glenn's successful orbiting of the earth, President Kennedy said that one of the 30 messages of congratulation from heads of state had come from Premier Khrushchev. The Russian message suggested that it would be beneficial to the advance of science if the two countries could work together in the exploration of space.

The president's reply was a warm endorsement of this suggestion. He said the United States would be glad to discuss in any forum how national differences could be left behind as mankind set out to explore what he called the "new ocean." A little later he sent Khrushchev a letter proposing that the two nations engage in joint operation of weather and communications satellites and in research on space medicine. This would lead, he intimated, to eventual co-operation in exploring the moon and the planets Mars and Venus.

On March 21 at his press conference he announced that he had received a gratifying letter from Khrushchev indicating a number of areas of common interest. He designated Hugh L. Dryden, deputy administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, to take the lead in technical talks with the Soviets.

These were brave words. But in the reaction to the extraordinary achievement of the two Soviet cosmonauts, it is hardly necessary to read between the lines to see how this is interpreted in nationalistic military terms. Before the two men had landed, inspired stories came from the United States Air Force to the effect that the real significance of the feat was military.

This was expressed feelingly by one of the world's great space authorities, Sir Bernard Lovell, director of the Jodrell Bank radio astronomy centre in England. He said that a "new and agonizing dimension" had been added to the world's troubles since, in his opinion, the Soviet Union was now capable of shooting down America's spy satellites just as they brought down the U-2 espionage plane. Then he added:

"More than ever, one is appalled by the foolishness of these two countries attempting a moon problem in competition. After all, the common problem is the exploration of space and the manned conquest of the solar system."

What happened to the brave words? Were they lost in the same desert of futility and recrimination in which the mirage of disarmament recedes to an ever further horizon? While it may be too early for a final answer, no one is very hopeful.

Several meetings were held in Geneva with the Soviets and some progress was reported on future co-operation in three phases of space activity: meteorology, communications and scientific research.

So popular have the Opera House Lotteries proved that money flows in from all parts of the world, a lottery is drawn every three to four weeks, and culture benefits by near two million pounds a year.

The second way in which Joe Cahill harnessed the average Australian's propensity for gambling—and drinking—was probably accidental, although it has proved exceedingly successful.

In 1954 the New South Wales government appointed a royal commission to investigate the liquor industry. As a result of the commission's findings the state government amended the Liquor Act to permit more licensed clubs.

Kremlin was pushing the dual flight to get the utmost in patriotic fervor. National pride would in any event need little stimulus in view of a drama of such magnitude.

It comes as a form of escapism as the Communist peoples face serious internal trouble. Agriculture has failed in the Soviet Union both on the production and distribution side. Prices of butter and meat have been raised to almost prohibitive levels. With the old plugging question of incentive in a socialist society, death sentences have been passed on dozens of speculators and hoarders. With millions of Chinese existing on the border of starvation, Mao Tse-tung sends Khrushchev an ardent telegram of congratulation in the name of "the Chinese People."

The psychology of "they're ahead," "we're ahead," grows with each new achievement. But if this is in fact a military race, then mankind itself is certain in the end to lose.

Culture Through Gambling?

By WILLIAM FITTER
from Sydney

GAMBLING, probably the chief of the Australian's sins, is being harnessed for good in two remarkable ways in New South Wales.

About six years ago, Mr. Joe Cahill, a modest, unassuming Labor premier of New South Wales, became obsessed with Sydney's need for an opera house. He had been encouraged in the idea by Sir Eugene Goossens, conductor of the Sydney Symphony Orchestra, who winced at the Victorian ugliness and unpredictable acoustics of Sydney Town Hall every time he conducted there.

Mr. Cahill, with some difficulty, wore down opposition within his pebbled cabinet, a world-wide competition was launched, and an northodox design by the Danish architect Joern Utzon, with a controversial "billowing sail" roofline, was accepted. Originally the cost was estimated at about four million pounds, but as work has progressed on the harbourside so has the bill, until today, including new wharves to facilitate transport to the finished opera house, the grand cost is expected to reach 15 million.

But although critics of the whole idea of an opera house are resentful at what they term a waste of money which would have been better employed for housing, nobody is very worried. For Joe Cahill, although he knew little of music and less of opera, appreciated that cultural projects can be political dynamite, and before he died he ensured that there would be adequate finance without resort to the state budget.

His proposal was simple—a continuing lottery of 100,000 tickets at £3 each. First prize would be £100,000—sufficient to tempt any gambler, and after minor prizes and administrative costs, each lottery would yield a profit of some £140,000 towards the cost of the opera house.

So popular have the Opera House Lotteries proved that money flows in from all parts of the world, a lottery is drawn every three to four weeks, and culture benefits by near two million pounds a year.

The second way in which Joe Cahill harnessed the average Australian's propensity for gambling—and drinking—was probably accidental, although it has proved exceedingly successful.

In 1954 the New South Wales government appointed a royal commission to investigate the liquor industry. As a result of the commission's findings the state government amended the Liquor Act to permit more licensed clubs.

Hotel interests suffered loss of trade, and they countered by pressing the government to prohibit poker machines. These machines were, in fact, illegal, but the government had turned a blind eye to their installation in clubs provided that tokens rather than two shilling pieces were used to play them, and prizes won were paid in kind rather than in cash.

The liquor trade's challenge forced the government to decide whether to enforce the ban against poker machines or legalize them, and money prizes, and in doing so handed licensed clubs a golden goose, for only clubs, not hotels, may install them.

Nobody could have foreseen the revolution in club life which this simple machine, with its lever, three whirling cylinders carrying playing card symbols, and an insatiable appetite for two-shilling pieces, was to bring.

Eight years ago there were about 400 clubs in New South Wales; today there are 1,253 clubs with a membership of nearly 300,000. Many of the bigger clubs have luxurious premises with separate lounges for men and women, a dance hall, theatre, squash courts, library and dining room. Men and women who previously had no experience of club life but sought separate entertainments are now joining in an extraordinarily full club and community life. The whole expanding movement has been financed primarily from poker machine profits. It is difficult to assess these profits overall, but for all clubs they are estimated at between three and four million pounds a year. One large Sydney club made a profit of £105,000 from poker machines last year, and expects to make more this year.

Surplus profits, after every conceivable comfort has been provided for members for a modest two guineas a year subscription—go to charity, allocated according to the club committee's whim.

Large sums have been given to hospitals, to homes for subnormal and spastic children, to financing and delivering "Meals on Wheels" to pensioners, to equipping school and junior sporting teams, to subsidizing school libraries and providing television sets, to bursaries for high school and university study and to building public swimming pools.

Many social workers have lamented the licensing of poker machines, instancing the odd compulsive gambler who will feed his week's wages into the machines. But club committees are sensitive to this criticism, and police their premises, warning, and if necessary expelling, any member who gambles to excess.

Whatever the social consequences of encouraging gambling, the poker machine-based club movement in New South Wales is expanding, and stimulating a community awareness which no other organization—church, cultural, sporting or political—has been able to equal.

Harold and the Market

Nothing Bard

By PAUL JENNINGS from London

SIR Laurence Olivier said on his appointment as first director of the National Theatre Board that he hoped for something that would be "a source of pride to my profession and the country as a whole"; and indeed one longs for an image to replace the vague one in one's mind of a lot of people with beards and umbrellas grouped round a wet foundation stone behind some warehouses about 40 (or 140) years ago.

The trouble is that one can't form any picture of the actual playing. A National Theatre either needs some kind of tradition—those flunkies and the three knocks on the stage and the formalized acting, like a sort of intellectual Gilbert and Sullivan, that the French have—or it needs some great playwright who, like Shakespeare, could make drama out of recent and contemporary history. Like this:

THE FAMOUS HISTORY OF HAROLD AND THE COMMON MARKET

Act I, Scene 1. A street before the court of Charles the Tall, Emperor of Europe, at Brussels. Enter two Economists.

1st Econ.: I tell thee, Claudio, 'twas a most noble sight, and one that outlasted Nature, how Master Heath, like a very pillar of Hercules, bestrid the gap between England and these of Europe, till he did shrink the very sea with talking.

2nd Econ.: Aye, 'tis a silver-tongued man, a very fine man, and one that doth not weary either in the voiding lobby or in the great Babel-chamber of their discourse.

1st Econ.: Babel! Fie, there's no way to speak of those that are like to be conjoined in frodary commerce with us; we had all been devoured by the great Tartar himself, else.

simple to Europe, that is nothing but a strumpet?

1st Econ.: Marry, thou has reversed the old tale. 'Twas Jean Bull that did have the advantage of Europe.

2nd Econ.: Well, would I had the stomach to this business of Master Heath. 'Twas yesterday he required of me, by noon today, a tally-stay of imported women's goods: as, pouncet-boxes, sarcones, and such other conjuncture of gawds as fogs my bryn; yet 'tis to be done by noon.

1st Econ.: I too must to my desk, for soon he will straitly require of me a list of tisums, knitted or woven, wholly or mainly of cotton, broom wool or as it saith here, glass fibre, silk, artificial silk, animal hair or any mixtures of any of the foregoing materials. Come, let's go our ways.

Scene 2. An antechamber of the court. Enter Master Heath and Signor Colombo, Italian Embassy to the court of Brussels.

Heath: Signor Colombo, closest to our heart.

Of all the Six, against the Judgment stern Of Paris, whose unyielding lord doth show Vaulting ambition which o'erleaps itself.

Say, have our Dutch and Belgique friends Found any formula to save our face?

Colombo: None that will through any chink allow Temperate foodstuffs from your Commonwealth.

Heath: Temperate foodstuffs! Goats or hating monkeys! That for parcel of these boring foods, Dull grains and vetches into soggy puddings made.

Our great desire should founder! Better far Interperate spices and exotic fruits, Turmeric, cinnamon, elvas plums in wine, Sesame, mangoes, crimson betel nuts, Mastic and ginger and sharp Indian dills;

Form-and-Mason-sounding freights like these At least would not so strongly underline One's sense of anti-climax.

Colombo: Yet I do believe The Emperor hath over-reached himself in this.

Heath: It may be so; and with the help of Heaven Parochial Six may yet be worldwide Seven.

Act II, Scene, any old backdrop while they change the scenery.

1st Clown: O, I'll have no metrics. I have met tricks like that before. Your metric is a very ill trick, therefore I'll none of it.

2nd Clown: What, thou fustilarian, thou sheephearer, thou small thing of wood! I'll instruct thee, block-pate. Is not ten the measure of my things?

1st Clown: Nay, it is not. For a man hath five digits on each hand, which is to say ten, and two thumbs twivel, which maketh twelve.

Two inches to the foot, say I, and to the devil with your Popish metrics.

2nd Clown: Why, thou fellow-keech, thou patch, thou cod's lip, wouldst thou populate England with six-foot monsters? Thou reactionist, thou obfuscantiarian, thou duodecimal ulcer, I'll make an end of thee, I'll buffet thee with hard.

1st Clown: Thou blason, corky applejohn, I'll none of thee. I'll go play troll-my-dames.

Scene 2. Fleet Street. Lord Beaverbrook: O Harold, Harold! Thou art mad! Why else Upon this biased Heath you stop our way

With such prophetic greeting? Is Europa then Preferred by thee to loyal Canada the fair

Which is more lovely and more temperate, Foodstuffs and all? She should have died here, Efta.

On, on, you noblest England! (State himself, but misses.)

Act III. A Grouse moor. Harold: The Moor is of a free and open nature.

Far from treasons, stratagems and spells Here we make holiday— (Enter Colman, Prentiss and Varley, messengers, heralds, economists, etc.) Colman, Prentiss, Varley: My lord, to arms! The royal host Lord Beaverbrook hath raised Grouse daily in the infected kingdom's parts, Threatening the whole.

Harold: 'Twas never yet so good; So, thanks to all at once and to each one Whom we invite to eat another grouse. (Flourish for the moment.)

'Secret' Good for Chuckle, Bad for Candidate

By JACK BEST

OTTAWA (CP) — The case of the confidential document that somehow failed to remain confidential Wednesday had diplomatic officials mystified and in many cases—wryly amused.

The document, supporting the candidacy of Ceylonese High Commissioner G. P. Malalasekera for president of the UN General Assembly, was circulated among several foreign missions here several weeks ago.

It is understood to have contained several uncomplimentary references to the United States and some other Western countries. Dr. Malalasekera, as well as being Ceylon's high commissioner here, is the chief Ceylonese delegate to the UN.

A firm "no comment" was the only response of a high commission spokesman to requests for information on the document, existence of which was disclosed in a news dispatch from United Nations headquarters in New York Tuesday night.

Apparently it had been for some time a choice conversational tidbit, and the course of amused chuckles, on the Ottawa cocktail circuit.

Dr. Malalasekera himself was not in Ottawa, having gone to Jamaica to represent Ceylon at the Caribbean country's recent independence celebrations. He was reported to have encountered delays in getting transportation out of Jamaica, but was expected to reach New York this weekend. The controversial document was understood to have been prepared originally for the Ceylonese government. Puzzled diplomats could only speculate on how it came to be distributed here.

"Socialist countries" of the Soviet bloc represented a "phalanx." The NATO powers were evidently "nervous" about Afro-Asian solidarity.

Informed opinion here tended to support suggestions from UN headquarters that circulation of the document—and the subsequent publicity—lulled whatever chances Dr. Malalasekera may have had of winning the assembly presidency when the 1962 assembly opens next month.

In the words of one informant: "It certainly raised doubts as to his impartiality and good judgment."

Two-Month Recess

Geneva Calls Time Flips Ball to UN

GENEVA (AP) — The 17-nation disarmament conference, with only an East-West deadlock to show for its five months of work, voted Wednesday to recess from Sept. 8 to Nov. 12 and let the United Nations carry the ball.

There was unofficial talk here that new ideas to halt the arms race and nuclear testing may be put forward at the meeting of the UN General Assembly in New York starting Sept. 18.

India has led an 11th-hour effort to push the United States and the Soviet Union into informal negotiations here on a nuclear test ban.

Suggestions for ending nuclear tests have been receiving major attention at the conference because of apparently irreconcilable differences in the general disarmament programs of the two sides.

U.S. delegate Arthur Dean again criticized the Soviet program, calling it a "thinly disguised effort to bring about the complete dismantling of the Western defence system."

Western officials reported considerable support was building up for the Indian proposal. It is based on a belief that the U.S. and Soviet test-ban positions are not far apart and could be brought together in informal, secret bargaining such as that which produced the Laos agreement.

Dean said the test-ban question may come up today at a meeting between himself and the Soviet deputy foreign minister, Valery Kuznetsov, conference co-chairmen.

The U.S. position is that any comprehensive nuclear test ban must contain provisions for effective control. This would consist largely of on-site inspections, which the Soviet Union has consistently rejected as a disguised form of espionage.

E. L. M. Burns of Canada opposed the recess. He reluctantly agreed after all other delegations had accepted the compromise date.

Will Action Follow Scare?

Pressure on Latins to Clean Up Smallpox

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP) — Jimmy Orr's smallpox may be used as a weapon by pan-American health authorities to force Brazil into more aggressive action to stamp out the disease, reported still prevalent in parts of that country.

A report issued by the Pan-American Health Organization Wednesday shows at least 1,011 cases of smallpox occurred last year in Rio de Janeiro alone.

Because of a lack of statistics and a lack of co-operation from Brazilian doctors in providing smallpox information, organization officials said they don't know how many cases occurred in the rest of Brazil or how many went unreported in Rio.

Dr. Earl Chamberlayne, 48, Canadian-born official of the organization, said it has been trying for years to clean up smallpox in Latin America. But the organization could not force a country to take action it did not want to take.

A native of White Rock, B.C., and an expert in communicable diseases, Dr. Chamberlayne said some countries, such as Colombia, quickly applied eradication measures. Others were slow. Outbreaks still were prevalent in Brazil and Ecuador.

Orr, 14-year-old son of Rev. and Mrs. James Orr of Three Hills, Alta., is in a Toronto isolation hospital with smallpox, after having flown from Brazil to New York Aug. 11, and travelling to Toronto by train with his family.

At Toronto the Ontario health department said no epidemic is anticipated as the result of the contacts he made during the trip.

Health authorities representing the 21 member countries of the Pan-American Union now are meeting at Minneapolis and

Dr. Chamberlayne said a resolution may be adopted calling on Brazil and Ecuador to speed up eradication programs, using the Orr case for argument.

Dr. Chamberlayne said that

"for maximum protection, a person should have his vaccination renewed every three years. The vaccine tends to lose some of its protective value after that."

New Move to Oust Allies

Russians 'Quit' Berlin

BERLIN (AP) — The Soviet Union took one more step Wednesday toward its announced objective of forcing the Western Allies out of Berlin.

Gen. Ivan Yakubovskiy, Soviet commandant for all East Germany, summoned officers of three Western powers to his headquarters in Potsdam and handed them an announcement that the Soviet command in Berlin is being abolished.

The announcement said the commandant's duties were being transferred to Soviet headquarters in East Germany. These duties involve matters relating to the movement and supplies of the Western garrisons in and out of West Berlin.

In Washington, the state department declared the United States will continue "to hold the Soviet Union responsible for carrying out its obligations in Berlin" and the three Western commandants will continue to exercise their rights. The United States consulted Britain and France on the Soviet decision.

The full significance of the Soviet move was not immediately apparent. The Soviet representative remained at the important Berlin air safety centre. Russian guards were still standing sentry at the huge Russian monument built in the British sector at the end of the Second World War.

The Communist East German government hailed the Soviet action as a "contribution to eliminating the remains of the Second World War."

The Communists said the Western Allies had been maintaining the fiction of a four-power commandantura in Berlin as a cover for a North Atlantic Treaty Organization base in Berlin.

It seemed to be implicit in the Communist move that removal of the Russian commandantura from East Berlin automatically took away the basis for retention of Western commandants here.

This is not the case, however. All three Western powers have given their pledges to maintain West Berlin as a free and independent city.

The Soviet announcement did not state when the withdrawal of the Soviet Berlin command was effective.

John D Filling Roster

By JAMES FELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker Wednesday all but completed the government's personnel selection for the new Parliament, which opens its first session Sept. 27.

He announced after a 2½-hour morning cabinet meeting that he will nominate Marcel Lambert, 43, bilingual Rhodes Scholar lawyer and Dieppe war veteran, as a speaker of the Commons.

He also designated Senator Alfred J. Brooks, 72, soft-spoken New Brunswicker and former veterans minister, to lead government forces in the Senate.

The only major post remaining to be filled is that of Speaker of the Senate—a government appointment. Mr. Diefenbaker indicated he has made his choice but is not ready yet to announce it.

Mr. Lambert, parliamentary secretary to the revenue ministry since 1967 when he was first elected to the Commons in Edmonton West constituency, succeeds Roland Michener, 62, another Rhodes Scholar lawyer, who was defeated in the June 18 general election in Toronto St. Paul's.

The Speakers of the Commons are elected by the House on the nomination of the government, frequently with the support of opposition parties. The government's choice is rarely opposed in a formal vote of the House. The Senate speakers are appointed.

Normally the $22,000-a-year positions alternate between MPs and Senators with English and French backgrounds. Mr. Diefenbaker noted that this was being followed in the case of Mr. Lambert, whose parents were French-Canadian and Belgian.

The prime minister said the government does not plan any special legislation this session to create a permanent speakership.

Sensor Brooks succeeds Senator W. A. Riddell of Roseville, Sask., as the $20,000-a-year Senate leader. Senator Aestime will remain a member of the upper house.

LETTERS to the Editor

To be considered for publication in whole or in part letters must be on subjects of general interest, not more than 300 words in length, and, if signed with a pen-name, must be accompanied by the writer's name and address.

It would be very interesting to the public to know what point we must reach in blood pressure... when something concrete and salutary must be done to curb the activities of vandals. I've had my share in times past, but of course nothing happened to put period to the depredations of microbe-brained creatures...

Where does one go for redress, compensation or even cessation of these activities? Public house-keeping might be useful, but then who knows who might be involved? It would be really disgraceful if some caught culprits turned out to be the sons of the best people...

The point is, what are the authorities going to do about it and when will punishment be adequate and fast, or are we afraid of these teen-age louts? PRO BONO PUBLICO.

Douglas Parking Ban

Why did the CIDC ban parking on Douglas Street? Why didn't it ban parking at the rush hours on a trial basis? There are no traffic problems on Douglas Street in Seaside. Is there an ulterior motive? It is hard to believe otherwise, or surely these intelligent gentlemen would have more compassion for their fellow men.

Taxes have to be paid or rent has to be met or we are faced with the ultimate results. The picture is not pretty.

If this new ruling was made to save lives or bring prosperity then I could understand it. As things are — why?

DOUGLAS STREET TAXPAYER.

Gloomy Picture

Your editorial "The Dark Continent" paints a gloomy picture of the Africa that is coming into view with the departure of the white. However, in a land where power has always been held by powerful chiefs and witch doctors it is useless to expect anything like democracy can operate for many decades.

Our so-called democracy even in the Western world is a thing of yesterday. Less than a century ago the majority in Britain were still illiterate and until the Africans can read and write it is too much to hope that the mass will play any part in the future governments...

It took capitalism two centuries to develop our present way of life from feudalism; the businessmen who did the job are not in evidence in Africa and are far from having the power which the rising business class had in the Western world.

Little but long-continued chaos can be expected in Africa during the rest of this century. The feud between capitalism and Communism makes it impossible to help the Africans as they should be helped.

ICONOCLAST.

The Blanket Empire

By J. T. JONES

Once the Indians had been pacified with an offer of blankets, and a large cougar had been disposed of by the governor's groom, things looked rosy for the 100 new settlers that HMS Hecla dropped off at Cowichan just a century ago.

There was a certain amount of pampsy involved. The warship carried Governor Douglas, the surveyor-general and his assistant, and the attorney-general.

The few natives at present in the district (the major portion of the tribes being absent fishing) agreed without hesitation to the surrender of their lands to the government, with the exception of their village sites and potato patches," reported The Daily British Colonist.

The Indians were promised that "when the absent members of the tribes had returned to their homes in the autumn compensation for the lands taken up by the settlers would be made at the same rate as that previously established—amounting in the aggregate to the value of a pair of blankets to each Indian—the chiefs, of course, coming in for the lion's share of the potlatch."

"The Indians, one and all, expressed themselves as perfectly content with the proposed arrangement, and even appeared anxious that settlers should come among them."

How the absent members reacted when they found out that their birthright had literally been sold for a mess of potlatch isn't recorded. Certainly some of their descendants have been none too perfectly content.

The beautiful country worked its wiles on the new arrivals. As one party was dispatched to the Shawigan district, another to Soaness and the third to Quamichan, the Colonist recorded, "the weather was fine, and from the expressions of satisfaction which fell from the lips of every member of the expedition, it is believed that many of the settlers will make the Cowichan Valley their permanent home."

And so they did.

The day after their arrival there came a flurry of action. "A huge panther was shot by the Governor's groom in the woods just as he was preparing to spring," said the account, not mentioning what he was preparing to spring at. "The body was brought down as a trophy. Game of all kinds is abundant and numerous deer paths were observed leading to the river shores."

Science marched on in its halting way.

From far-off Antwerp came a report that a jet-propelled steamship had been tested with some success. Instead of screw or paddles, it shot twin streams of water backwards from a big central pump.

A distinguished visitor arrived on the steamer Oregon: Hon. Malcolm Cameron of Sarnia, Canada West. A prominent member of the Canadian government, he was touring the Pacific Coast.

Victoria citizens tendered him a complimentary dinner, in tribute to his services toward an overland route between Canada and British Columbia.

And there was a visit from a draft-dodger—a San Francisco merchant, born a British subject but naturalized as an American, who came all the way here to swear new allegiance to Her Majesty and obtain the necessary documents to prove he was no longer a citizen of the republic.

Then he caught the next boat back.

Feared Riots Not Realized

JOHANNESBURG (AP)—The first weekend on which South Africa's Negroes could buy liquor at bottle stores on an equal basis with whites passed without the drunken orgies and street fighting that had been predicted.

Johannesburg police said there was no unusual number of complaints. Previously, Negroes were allowed to buy liquor ration only if they had a special permit and such permits were rare.

Hose Thief Told To 'Grow Up'

John A. Clark, 26, 1325 Dunsman, was told to "start behaving like a man," in city police court yesterday.

Found guilty of stealing 100 feet of city water hose from a boulevard, he was given a suspended sentence of six months and on his own to abstain from drinking for recognition of $250 required for that period.

"This is the sort of foolish escapade one might expect from a child of 12," said

Magistrate William Oatley. "Don't you think it is time you grow up and start behaving like a man?"

Good Old Days Not All Good

By RED SMITH
NEW YORK — One of those "Thirty Years Ago in Sports" columns jogs a dusty memory. On Aug. 5, 1932, the item recalls Detroit's mighty little curve-ball pitcher, Tommy Bridges, had a perfect game going against Washington with two out in the ninth inning. With the score 13 to 0 against the Senators, the Washington manager, Walter Johnson, called on Dave Harris as a pinch-hitter, and that soulless miscreant callously struck a single.

We were all somewhat younger in those days, and perhaps we took a more solemn view of children's games than is fashionable today. Or maybe it only seems in retrospect that the arguments that raged through the next few days were hotter than any heard recently about A-bomb tests.

There never was a professional ball player more highly esteemed by all fans than Walter Johnson. Yet you'd have thought Walter had cancelled a subscription to the Herald Tribune, or at least made a hobby of burning orphanages. Especially in Detroit, where Bridges was venerated more devoutly than Clara Bow, the Senators' amiable manager won leper-of-the-year renown.

Useless Single
None but the most loathsome friend would call reinforcements—Harris, a part-time outfielder, batted 337 that year—to defile the divine Tommy's work of art with a useless single in a hopeless cause. Johnson, of all people, should be above such tactics, for he had been a pitcher himself and in 1920 had been deprived of a perfect game against Boston when Bucky Harris, his second baseman, committed an error.

It was delightful nonsense, Johnson, of course, had no choice under the code of his tribe. Though he knew the game was lost, he was morally and professionally bound to employ every measure at his command until the last man went out, which the last man did immediately after Harris' single.

Even if the result had no bearing on Washington's position in the league, this still would have been true. Actually, the Senators were impersonating pennant contenders that summer; they finished third, only one game behind the second place Athletics, with Detroit fifth.

Nobody Knocked
Twenty-four years later when Don Larsen was pitching a perfect world series game for the Yankees, nobody reviled Walter Alston for sending up Dale Mitchell to bat for Sal Maglie with two Dodgers out in the ninth. Maybe we'd grown up in the meantime, or perhaps Alston would have been abused if Mitchell had not had the grace to strike out.

At any rate, a guy can't help feeling that Walter Johnson's ethical problems in 1932 made for more entertaining reading than Walter O'Malley's difficulties with the Los Angeles tax assessors in 1962.

Mention of Bridges recalled a more recent occasion when he was working against the Senators, trying to protect a one-run lead with runners on base and the dangerous Stan Spence at bat. As the tale goes, Paul Richards, catching for Detroit, flashed the curve ball sign, but Bridges shook him off. Fast ball? Bridges rejected the suggestion. Change of pace? Another shake of the head.

Whistled In
Law-abiding catchers of this day have no sign for the forbidden spitter, but Richards braced himself, right leg out-thrust. The first pitch whistled in, dipping sharply.

"Strike one," said Bill Summers.

Merchants Reach Final

Merchants and Sooke will part in the double knockout event. First game is set for 10 on Saturday morning and the last for some time Sunday afternoon. Two clubs will survive to represent the Island in the provincial finals, scheduled for Victoria, Sept. 2, 3 and 4.

Turner gave up one of his two hits and the only run in the first inning, was in complete control the rest of the way.

THE PALMER METHOD

SWING BACK "INSIDE"

Illustrated is a type of swing which will usually result in a slice. The clubhead is outside the intended line of flight. The golfer who does this will probably swing back into the ball in the same swing arc.

It is simple enough to start back correctly. Keep the wrist out of the action. Concentrate on bringing the clubhead back low and slowly, and start everything with a pivot of the hips to the right.

UBC Rowers Waiting For Government Grant

VANCOUVER (CP) — The University of British Columbia oarsmen got a $3,000 grant from the B.C. Amateur Sports Council Wednesday, but they're still waiting impatiently for word from Ottawa concerning funds to take them to the first world rowing championships.

"We're all packed and ready to go," said Aubrey Roberts, head of the rowing committee at UBC, "but unless we get this grant from Ottawa, I don't think we could go."

The UBC eight- and four-oared crews, selected to represent Canada in the British Empire Games rowing in Perth, Australia in November, want to compete in the world championships Sept. 6-9 at Lucerne, Switzerland.

UBC applied to the National Advisory Council on Fitness and Amateur Sport, administering a federal-government fund set up to aid fitness and amateur sports programs in Canada, for a grant of $15,000 toward costs of getting the 17-member team to Switzerland.

The latest word received here, Roberts said, is to the effect that some grant will be made, but the amount has not been set by the council.

Roberts said the UBC oarsmen are prepared to leave Vancouver Aug. 29 by air, but they must have word on the grant before they can board their plane.

At any rate, a guy can't help feeling that Walter Johnson's ethical problems in 1932 made for more entertaining reading than Walter O'Malley's difficulties with the Los Angeles tax assessors in 1962.

Rigging plastic, cadet sailors at dock are Mark Brown, 13, front, and Ian McNeil, 13. Cadet sailors must wear life jackets at all times during lesson and must be able to swim or be learning to swim. Basic course consists of 60 hours of instruction.

Two of 90 eager juniors receiving sailing classes at Royal Victoria Yacht Club this summer get running criticism of technique from instructor Sid Halla. Robert Hynds and Duncan McDowell handle sailboat.

First step toward mastering art of sailing for these junior members of Royal Victoria Yacht Club is mastering knot tying. Beginners tackling intricacies of "five over" are John Truscott, 13, front, Tom Lauga, 13, Jim Hunter, hidden, and Michael Vondette.

Cabinet Gift Problem

The social welfare department has asked for a report on the family situation of Mrs. Bloder who was recently awarded $1,000 by the provincial cabinet.

The cabinet said it awarded the money to the woman as an act of grace and not because of any legal obligation.

The woman's husband, Hugo Bloder, 62, died shortly after serving jury duty in 1960. He had presented a medical certificate from his doctor stating he was unfit for jury duty.

Since Mrs. Bloder is on welfare at the moment, her payments would have to stop if she accepts the Government's offer.

An official in the welfare department said Wednesday the family situation is being looked into, "with a very sympathetic view."

A spokesman said the department will make no approach to reversing its offer until the report on Mrs. Bloder's situation is made.

Mrs. Bloder lives at Stave Falls.

Old Fish Hunted

OTTAWA (UPI)—A group of Canadian and American scientists are on their way to a remote mountainside in British Columbia to probe for the remains of fish that swam above Western Canada 200,000 years ago.

Resources Minister Dinsdale, announcing the expedition of the National Museum of Canada and American Museum of Natural History, said the deposit of fossil fish was "one of the most significant to be uncovered in the Western Hemisphere."

Ancient Coins Found

LOUISBOURG, N.S. (CP)—Restoration workers at the old Louisbourg fortress Wednesday discovered a small lead chest containing three French bronze medals struck in 1719. They were designed by order of King Louis XV of France to commemorate founding of the fortress.

Hot Lake Beef Cooled Off

EDMONTON (CP)—Cottage residents at Lake Wabamun, 40 miles west of here, complained a Calgary Power Ltd. steam plant was gradually warming the whole lake, but Alberta government officials have dismissed the complaints.

The Calgary Power plant releases water into Lake Wabamun after it has been used to cool electrical generation equipment.

Inge Anderson of the provincial agriculture department's water resources branch said this would affect the lake in the immediate area of the plant, but would not heat the entire lake.

Mr. Anderson said all lakes in the Edmonton area have been dropping for the past four years because water is not being replenished. The lakes are becoming stagnant and warmer.

TWO CARNATIONS TELL A STORY

On Thursday, August 23rd at Eaton's, when you see a man wearing a white carnation—or a woman wearing a pink one—you'll know they are a key part of this story. This is the day they welcome the 10,000th member, Gordon T. Seymour, Toronto, into their very special club. It's the Timothy Eaton Quarter Century Club... and each member, past or present, has spent a quarter of a century or more serving you and your neighbours at Canada's largest marketplace.  New members are welcomed with a significant presentation ceremony and an extended vacation. Each receives from the Company a specially designed watch (or a diamond ring) and a Quarter Century Club certificate. A six-weeks' vacation is given during their Quarter Century year.  Members of this exclusive club wear a carnation today... from elevator operator to senior executive, delivery driver to the Company's President, in every Eaton store in Canada and in our buying offices in other lands. Their long service symbolizes an attitude that prevails throughout the Eaton organization... a belief in the good, sound policy on which the Company was founded... the policy of a square deal for everyone, including the people who work for Eaton's.  A company is known by the people it keeps, and at Eaton's we're particularly proud that this tradition of fair dealing has proved the basis of a fine career for so many men and women.

Season Wrapped Up, Gifts Unwrapped

It was Christmas in August for Carol Bishop and Winston Leckie, two of the assistant instructors in the Colonist free swim classes at Elk Lake. The gifts were presented by Richard Bower, Colonist editor-in-chief, Wednesday. Volunteer assistant instructors are backbone of the big public service program. More than 1,100 youngsters turned out for the eight weeks of classes. See Page 35.—(Robin Clarke photo.)

Taxpayers Stage Rush

Saanich tax officials were flooded with such a rush of last-minute tax payments that yesterday they were still processing mail received on Aug. 15.
Deputy collector Kenneth Middleton said it will be next week before all the receipts are processed.

The British Columbia government has launched a "comprehensive survey" of the province's tourist traffic, Recreation Minister Earle Westwood announced yesterday.

The survey will be taken at the Douglas, B.C., border crossing—the main one, south of Vancouver—and on ferries between the United States and Vancouver Island.

Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce president Eric Charman last night would not say whether the survey would go ahead with their proposed survey of tourists leaving Vancouver Island.

WHAT KIND OF VISITOR?
Mr. Westwood said the B.C. government survey will provide information on three subjects: what sort of people tourists in B.C. are, what their attitudes toward the province are, and what would be the most effective advertising messages.

William Hawkins, commissioner of the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau, last night said he had been familiar with the government project for some time. He said it was a "very complete, very thorough" survey and should be "of inestimable value" to B.C. and especially to Vancouver Island.

PILOT STUDY
Mr. Westwood said the provincial government survey had been carefully planned for some months and plans were made final after a pilot study during July. The pilot study, he said, gave promise that a more complete survey would be productive.

The recreation minister said he hoped "that this survey will be useful, not only to my department but to local tourist promotion groups as well, and in particular to the groups administering our regional matching grant scheme."

HALF-HOUR INTERVIEWS
"The results will, of course, be made available for this purpose," he added.
A B.C. travel bureau official said a sampling of tourists will be given half-hour interviews by professional bureau employees. Tourists entering and leaving B.C. will be interviewed.

In that way, people will be telling about what brought them to the province and their preconceptions about it and about what pleased, displeased and surprised them when they were here.

Gymkhana Day
A gymkhana and playday will be held by the Victoria Riding Academy at 10 a.m. Sunday on the club's Cedar Hill Crossroad grounds.

People were lined up yesterday morning outside the post office waiting for the 8 a.m. opening, he said, and 10,000 of the commemorative issue were sold during the first hour the wickets were open.

The post office diverted people from their normal jobs to help sell the stamps. One man did nothing but cancel by hand unofficial first-day envelopes mailed in Victoria. Official first-day cancelling was available only in Ottawa.

Lester Small, past president of the Greater Victoria Philatelic Society, estimated thousands of first-day covers were mailed in Victoria yesterday.

SPECIALLY-PRINTED
A first-day cover is an envelope with a specially-printed design and message for mailing with the stamp on it on the first day of issue. Mr. Small said the three stamp-collectors' societies of Greater Victoria co-operatively had 1,600 printed "and we could have sold twice that many."

He said he had seen at least a dozen other different first-day covers printed by private concerns.

He said his stamp club thought the design of the stamp was excellent. Mr. Davies said the design seems to have been well received by the public.

The 1½-inch-by-one-inch stamp features a reproduction of the red 1861 2½-penny royal, first stamp issued in B.C. Below the reproduction, "Poste Canada Postage" is engraved in the shape of a horseshoe. At the top the legislative buildings are flanked by sprigs of dogwood.

Rowdyism Faces Crackdown

By HAL LEIREN

Police in the Greater Victoria area have declared war on a wave of vandalism and rowdiness, which in recent days has seen church and school windows smashed, women threatened by rowdies and decorative trees stripped of foliage.

Police patrols throughout Greater Victoria have been increased to prevent recurrence of vandalism.

In Saanich, where rock-throwing hoodlums smashed irreplaceable stained glass windows in St. Aidan's Church during the weekend, Deputy Police Chief R. J. Hamilton said: "There is too much of this going on in the district. We intend to make a real crackdown on the culprits."

NO ALARM
Victoria Police Chief John Blackstock and Oak Bay Police Chief Robert Smith agreed there has been an upswing of rowdiness in their districts, but added it has not been enough to cause alarm.
"It's something we expect during holidays," said Chief Blackstock.

INCREASED PATROLS
Chief Smith said Oak Bay police have increased patrols in the Uplands and along Esplanade, because street light bulbs have been smashed.

Three weeks ago, police broke up an after-midnight gang of teenagers gathered at Oak Bay Beach to watch a fight.

Hoodlums have been reported from all three municipalities.

SCHOOL HIT
Only two days after the window-smashing spree at St. Aidan's Church in Saanich, where 130 panes were broken, vandals smashed 27 windows in North Ward School.

A woman walking in Beacon Hill Park this week was set upon by a pack of five young hoodlums, one of them a girl.

They tore her purse from her hand.
An 18-year-old girl called police Monday night when 10 youths drove up in a car and started climbing the front of the building to the second-storey apartment where she lived with three other girls.

A Saanich woman walking some children Sunday was accosted by two youths who tried to kick her dog into the water.

NO EXPLANATION
Saanich Deputy Chief Hamilton said he could find no explanation for the wave of malicious destruction.

"I can't see how anyone could do that to a church... which is respected by all," he said.

Oak Bay Chief Smith said his major concern was the increasing disrespect for law among young people.

"Many of them don't feel they are doing anything wrong when they interfere with persons and properties of others," he explained.

FATTENS EGOS
Saanich Reeve Stanley Murphy, asked to comment, said he disagreed with publicly given the vandalism.

"It just fattens the ego of these youngsters," he said. "I am confident the police department can handle it."

Medical Talk
Dr. Peter J. Banks will discuss medical care and insurance at a meeting of the S.S. Beaver Kiwanis Club at 7:30 a.m. today at the Tally Ho Hotel.

City's Own Commemorative Stamp Buyers Storm Wickets

Victoria citizens gave their own centennial postage stamp an enthusiastic welcome yesterday and flocked to the post office by the thousands to buy it.

Victoria postmaster Allan Davies said response in Victoria was "terrific" in the first day of sale of the five-cent Canadian stamp commemorating the 100th year of Victoria. He estimated 40,000 of the stamps were sold at the city post office.

Normal first-day sales in Victoria of a commemorative stamp are 3,000 to 5,000, Mr. Davies said.

MORNING LINEUP
People were lined up yesterday morning outside the post office waiting for the 8 a.m. opening, he said, and 10,000 of the commemorative issue were sold during the first hour the wickets were open.

The post office diverted people from their normal jobs to help sell the stamps. One man did nothing but cancel by hand unofficial first-day envelopes mailed in Victoria. Official first-day cancelling was available only in Ottawa.

Lester Small, past president of the Greater Victoria Philatelic Society, estimated thousands of first-day covers were mailed in Victoria yesterday.

SPECIALLY-PRINTED
A first-day cover is an envelope with a specially-printed design and message for mailing with the stamp on it on the first day of issue. Mr. Small said the three stamp-collectors' societies of Greater Victoria co-operatively had 1,600 printed "and we could have sold twice that many."

He said he had seen at least a dozen other different first-day covers printed by private concerns.

New Man for Chair

New Agency Chief:

Love, Not Wealth Cuts Delinquency

Emotional jungles, not asphalt jungles, are the breeding ground for today's "Dead End Kid" hoodlum, Gordon R. Wright, new executive director of Victoria's Family and Children's Service said yesterday.

The man who will replace David E. Woodworth as chief administrator of the agency says the concept of poverty being the chief cause of juvenile delinquency is outdated.

Emotional instability in the parents begets problem children, he said. And the same emotional instability acts as the principal agent in creating depressed economic conditions.

POVERTY SYMPTOM
For many social workers have come to believe that poverty is a symptom, rather than a cause, of the emotional problems that split families or send a youngster onto a trail that all too often ends in police court.

"Most people are better off today than they were in the 1930s, when times were tough," said Mr. Wright.

But the change in the social structure has been so rapid that families now find themselves "socially disoriented."

CAN'T TRANSLATE
There's no rule of thumb that can determine the parent of the 1930s was better than the parent of today.

"One problem is that the parent of today can't translate into modern-day terms the things he learned as a child in that period," said Mr. Wright.

Strength, stability and love are the determining factors that can keep youngsters out of trouble, rather than a fat bank account or a show-place home.

EARLY OCTOBER
Mr. Wright, an RCAF veteran and former supervisor in the Young Offender's Unit at Oakalla Prison Farm, will assume his new duties early in October.

He received his formal education at UBC, where he attained his BA, bachelor's degree in social work, then a master's degree.

Prior to his appointment here, he was with the Greater Vancouver Family Service Agency, employed as a case worker and supervisor.

GROUP COUNSELLING
One project he hopes to carry further here is group counselling.

"We can't reach them all, and this would enable us to double our case-load," he said.

Margaree Off
Sea trials will start today for destroyer escort HMCS Margaree after a month of repairs following sabotage of one of her main engine gears.

Esquimalt's 50th birthday party got roaring last night with more than 800 persons on hand to give it a rousing send-off.

More than 300 guests sat down to the golden jubilee banquet held at the Esquimalt Sports Centre prior to an open-house entertainment program and heard birthday greetings from Lieutenant-Governor Pearkes, Victoria mayor R. B. Wilson, and reeve George Murdoch of Oak Bay, and Stanley Murphy of Saanich.

PIONEERS LAUDED
Esquimalt's pioneers were lauded by the lieutenant-governor for "laying the foundation for the prosperous municipality in which you now live."

"I was here 50 years ago," he continued, "but by force of circumstances I moved to Saanich and then Victoria, so you must consider me a renegade, or even a foreigner."

SPECIAL MEMORIES
He told guests the municipality held special memories for him. "Since 37 years ago to this day, I arrived here to stay at the home of Mrs. Fitzherbert Bullen, and two days later I was married to my wife."

Earlier, Mayor Wilson told dinner guests Esquimalt's reeve and council were held in "great respect" by members of other municipal governments in Greater Victoria.

FROM OAK BAY
Reeve Murdoch brought "sincere congratulations from the council and people of Oak Bay."

Following presentation of the gift to Esquimalt council—a desk set—Reeve Wurtel said he was "deeply moved."

"We will find a very nice place for this on the desk at the head of the council table," he added.

SEVEN-MAN TEAM
"We like to think that Esquimalt council works as a seven-man team... we feel that is the way the municipalities of Greater Victoria should work, and we feel that over the years we have achieved a measure of success."

He paid tribute to Esquimalt's "very friendly neighbors to the north"—the Esquimalt and Songhees Indian bands.

LAUDS WORK
Reeve Wurtel went on to laud the work carried out by former Reeves Thomas Hadfield and Magistrate A. I. Thomas, during the "trying days" when the municipality was greatly in need of basic services, with little revenue with which to provide them.

Following the dinner, the doors of the centre were thrown open to the general public, and a nine-act variety show featuring local and imported entertainers was presented.

GUESTS ASKED
Head table guests included MLA Herb Bruch and his wife; Air Commodore G. G. Truscott, Officer Commanding 5 Air Division, and Mrs. Truscott, Major and Mrs. R. B. Mainprize; Rev. J. A. and Mrs. Roberts, Rev. T. G. and Mrs. Griffiths, Rev. Father Lewis MacLennan and Commodore and Mrs. J. A. Charles.

'Trojan' Snake Captures Museum

Provincial museum officials were happy about the gift several days ago of a live garter snake.

Yesterday they realized their gift had the properties of a Trojan horse—and their happiness turned to uneasiness.

The exhibit was crawling with snakes and officials were pondering how they were going to feed them all.

Museum director Dr. G. Clifford Carl said he probably will keep the snakes on exhibit for awhile and release them later.

If children bring live earthworms, slugs and insects in jars to the museum it will relieve the food problem, he said.

The 27-inch snake came from Golden, B.C. Although it is a common garter snake, it was "attractive" in that it had a dark body with yellow stripes and reddish marks.

"We were a little surprised and unprepared" for the live birth, said Dr. Carl. "We don't want any more garter snakes for awhile."

Gold and White Roses Centre Bridal Bouquet

Frederick Chubb played the wedding music for the marriage of Elizabeth Jean McIntosh and Keith Charles Hamblett which took place in St. John's Church.

When the guests had assembled and before the ceremony Purcell's "Triumph Voluntary" was played.

The bride, daughter of Mrs. P. McIntosh, Vincent Avenue, was escorted to the altar by her brother, Malcolm McIntosh, to the strains of "Wedding Processional on a Theme" composed by George Chubb of Montreal based on a composition by Frederick Chubb for his own bride nearly 50 years ago.

St. John's Choir sang the Wedding Psalm and during the signing of the register they sang Schubert's "The Lord is my Shepherd."

BILK ORGANZA

For her wedding the bride chose a floor-length gown of silk organza over satin with fitted bodice, long sleeves and full skirt, slightly entrain. Her five tiered chapel-length veil of illusion fell from a detailed silk organza headpiece and her bridal bouquet was of gold and white roses with stephanotis.

Miss Anne Logan was maid of honor, Mrs. Joyce Pemberton, bridesmatron and the Misses Sheila MacPhail and Carol Saunders, bridesmaids.

BREATH DRESSES

They wore classic sheath dresses of white deluster satin with gold floral headpieces and cap veils. Gold chrysanthemums were in their bouquets. J. Scott Arnell was best man and Mr. Ronald and Mr. David Pemberton and Mr. Peter Walker showed guests to the pews.

Beautiful floral arrangement.

with WIN PACKER

Dear Mrs. Packer: Could you please tell me how to remove colored nail polish from a white pillow case and a patterned white sheet. There is also a small spot on the mattress. Any help you can give me would be appreciated.—Mrs. D. L.

You can safely use an application of either acetone, lacquer thinner or alcohol on all washable fabrics (any color) except acetate. I have found the simplest and most effective remedy for removing nail polish (or airplane glue) from any material is to apply nail polish remover on the opposite side of the material, then the polish or glue can be peeled off. Washing in hot suds usually takes care of any remaining discoloration. Try sponging the spot on the mattress with one of the suggested fluids, followed by clear water, then pat the area with a spongy towel or turn a fan on it to dry it quickly.

Wedding Date Set Sept. 1

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Yates, 3815 Old West Banish Road, announce the engagement of their eldest daughter, Carolyn Patricia, to William George Lawson Cragg, eldest son of Lieut. J. D. Mr. and Mrs. George Roderick Leece cut their wedding cake at the reception held at the Olde England Inn following their recent marriage in St. John's Anglican Church. The bride is the former Marian Elizabeth Collis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. P. Collis, 3308 Kingsley Street. The couple are now making their home at 1543 Earliston Avenue.

Science was another sphere opening up jobs, unheard of a few years ago, for technicians who worked in support of engineers and scientists. The writer reported that few women either in Canada or the United States have yet entered this field.

Mathematicians could look for excellent opportunities, particularly in the actuarial professions, in statistical work and in the computer field.

Distinguished Visitor Travelling to Lagos

She is on her way to the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association meeting in Lagos, Nigeria, beginning Oct. 13.

Mrs. J. M. Cooper, Liberal-Conservative member of the Legislative Council of South Australia, said she had found Victoria beautiful and her first visit to Canada was so far a delight.

She is a member of the elected upper house of one of the six states which, with a territory, make up Australia. And she is one of the founders of the Australia-Canada Association, set up recently in Adelaide, Australia to promote closer ties between the two countries.

Mrs. Cooper said Canada is well-known and liked in Australia, partly because of the large number of Canadians living there. A number of Canadians in Australia, and Australians of Canadian descent, are members of the association.

During her stay on Vancouver Island Mrs. Cooper has been a guest of Capt. and Mrs. Walter Wingate of Shawigan Lake, who were entertained by the Australia-Canada club during two of their visits to Australia.

They received congratulations from numerous callers seated before a profusion of beautiful flower arrangements sent to them by their many friends and fraternal organizations.

Flowers and greetings were received from His Worship Pete Maffeo and members of the Nanaimo city council.

A telegram was read from Queen Elizabeth II sending her best wishes and a letter from the Prime Minister of Canada offering his congratulations.

Mr. and Mrs. Bell have spent their entire married life in Nanaimo and 35 years at their present address, 654 Nicol Street.

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: My husband makes about $8,000 a year with overtime and bonus. We don't owe a dime.

Last night after dinner our oldest boy complained of a headache and pains in his side. He is rarely ill and I was concerned. His head felt hot so I took his temperature. He had 103 degrees. I asked my husband to telephone the doctor. He said, "The kid probably ate something that didn't agree with him. Why spend $10 on a doctor who will tell you the same thing?"

An hour later the TV went on the bum. He fiddled around with it for about 15 minutes, swore a little, then announced that the picture was shot and he'd have to call a repairman. This is how the conversation wound up: "Of course I'll pay him time and a half if he comes out right away. I can't miss the fight."

The boy was all right the next day, fortunately, but I still say it's a shame when a man thinks more of his TV than he thinks of his own son. What would you do with such a husband?—CANT FIGURE IT.

Dear Can't: I would decide on my own if a doctor was needed. And if I thought he was, I'd call him without delay.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm 25 years old and until recently I worked as a private secretary. In December I broke my leg and had to stay at home for several weeks.

After I got my walking cast

I was able to manage fairly well and agreed to take care of two small children for the woman next door. Her housekeeper left and she needed someone to care for her youngsters from 8:30 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. The following week another neighbor asked if I would take her two children with the same financial arrangement.

I love children and am having a marvelous time. Two more women have asked me to take their three-year-olds in the fall. All this has started me thinking about opening a nursery school. My father says he thinks this may be against the law because I've had only one year of college and am not a qualified teacher. I say I don't need to be a qualified teacher because the children are under five years of age. Am I right? I'd love to start a nursery school but I don't want to get into trouble.—MARGE.

Dear Marge: In some states you need more than love to start a nursery school. Check with the local superintendent of public schools and find out what the law says.

If you do not qualify I urge you to return to college and earn the proper credentials. It will be well worth it.

Dear Ann: The letter from the woman who signed herself "Minus One Dozen Eggs" sounded like the story of my life. "Mrs. Minus" was burned up because a friend gave her a recipe which turned out to be a flop. She strongly suspected dirty work.

Well I sympathize with the friend who gave her the recipe because this has happened to me several times. It took me 10 years to realize how dumb some women can be. They have flops with perfectly good recipes because they don't follow directions and furthermore they don't know the basic rules for cooking.

A relative once asked me how to prepare a meat dish. I told her to wrap the meat in aluminum foil. I thought surely she'd have enough sense to put the meat in a pan. Instead she placed it on the oven rack and lost all the juice and messed up the oven. She told everyone I loused her up.

Now I refuse to give out my recipes. I tell everyone to go look in a cook book and, believe me, I'm much happier.—BLAMELESS.

Nothing is more delightful to children than having a party. Take advantage of the month of August which is designated as "Sandwich Month." Or treat the youngsters to a party "just for fun."

BUNNY-BUN SANDWICH

(For four bunny faces.)

Four hamburger buns; softened butter; prepared mustard; 4 thin slices Canadian cheddar cheese; Egg Salad Spread, recipe below; 2 large carrots; piece of celery; 2 large stuffed olives; 1 sweet pickle.

It takes one whole bun to make one bunny sandwich. Split a bun in half. Spread each half with softened butter. To top half, add a light spreading of prepared mustard. Round off corners of cheese to fit bun. Cut ears from two sides so as to leave an equalateral triangular shaped piece left in the centre. Use this triangle for his vest broad base at neck line, point at bottom. Spread bottom half of buttered bun with about three tablespoons of egg salad spread. This is the face. Use slices of olives for eyes, piece of celery for mouth, thin strips of pickle for whiskers. Cut a slice of carrot lengthwise, fashion into a bow tie. Cut two little strips of carrots. Place a strip in centre of each ear. Assemble the bunny on dinner plate. Let ears peak over the edge if necessary.

EGG SALAD SPREAD

Four hard-cooked eggs, diced; ¼ cup finely-chopped celery; 3 tablespoons mayonnaise; 2 teaspoons prepared mustard; ¼ teaspoon salt; black pepper to taste.

Hearty Party for Children

Combine all ingredients in a bowl. Mix lightly. Enough filling for four bunny faces. Makes 1½ cups.

ORANGE CUP CAKES

Two cups sifted all-purpose flour; ¼ teaspoon salt; 2½ teaspoons baking powder; ½ cup butter or margarine; 1 cup sugar; 1½ teaspoons orange extract; 2 eggs; ¼ cup milk.

Measure and sift together flour, salt, and baking powder. Cream together butter, sugar, and orange extract. Add eggs one at a time, beating well after each addition. Add flour mixture and milk alternately, blending until smooth. Fill greased cup cake pans (or line cups with fluted paper liners) half full. Bake in 375°F oven 18 to 25 minutes or until done. Cool; swirl fluffy white frosting over tops. Sprinkle with coconut and chocolate cake decorations. 18 medium cup cakes.

TRIBAL FETISH

Tribesmen in Dutch New Guinea revere ancestral skulls, keeping them in their homes and taking them along on expeditions.

Chicken Livers Add To Exotic Rumaki

The outdoor grill always seems to produce delicious results, even when there's a Sunday-only cook in charge. Of course, a really imaginative chef turns out the biggest successes. And imagination is easily stimulated simply by borrowing cookout ideas from faraway places.

Here's one from the south seas, a sizzling Polynesian specialty called Rumaki. Pieces of bacon and chicken livers are alternated with mushrooms and water chestnuts. Then, for your own gourmet touch, baste the Rumaki with Coffee Barbecue Sauce during the grilling. This subtle sauce greatly enhances the fine flavor of the meat.

RUMAKI

Cut bacon slices in 1½-inch pieces. Cut chicken livers in fourths. Drain canned, broiled, whole mushroom crowns. Drain canned water chestnuts. On short metal skewers alternate bacon, chicken liver pieces, mushrooms and water chestnuts. Grill over hot coals until chicken livers are done, turning often and basting with Coffee Barbecue Sauce.

COFFEE-BARBECUE SAUCE

Quarter cup butter or margarine, ½ cup strong coffee, 2 drops Angostura bitters, 2 tablespoons brown sugar. Melt butter in small saucepan. Add coffee, bitters and sugar. Stir until sugar dissolves. Keep hot for basting. Makes about 1½ cups.

HEATING METHODS

A 1961 survey showed 57 per cent of Canadian homes heated by oil, 19 per cent gas, 12 per cent coal and 12 per cent wood.

FRENCH ORIGIN

The term "mushing" for sled dogs originated from the early French voyageurs' cries of "Marchons."

Straying Tot Found Alive

ISLIP, N.Y. (UPI)—A three-year-old boy who wandered lost and alone for three days and nights in a rugged sea-shore state park was found alive yesterday, possibly because a grandmother had a "premonition."

Stephen Papoi, his clothes in tatters, his body scratched and bruised, was found lying in a thicket. He was so weak from hunger and exposure he could not speak. But he smiled at his rescuers.

He was found by Sgt. Raymond Finger, an auxiliary policeman, and his wife Rosemarie. They had been searching for two days, with little time out for food and rest.

"I had a premonition . . . Mrs. Finger said. "This both-and me, and what we resumed the search this morning. I told my husband I think the boy is near the parking lot."

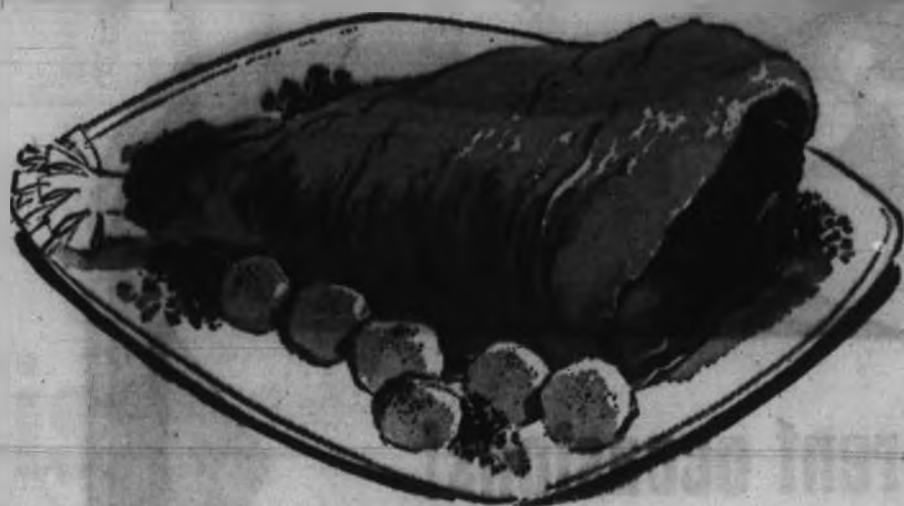

The dramatic rescue came as hundreds of searchers had all but given up hope of finding the boy alive.

CHANGING SCENE

Ethiopia now has at least 20,000,000 cattle compared to 1,000,000 remaining camels.

Passersby Target For Boy's Rifle

ST. JEROME, Que. (CP)—Quebec provincial police yesterday captured a 17-year-old boy who hid in bushes at nearby Riviere-a-Gagnon, taking pot shots with an old-fashioned rifle at people passing on the highway. Nobody was hurt.

Sea Victim Vanishes

VANCOUVER (CP)—A drowning victim's body has disappeared from a Texada Island beach where it was left by two survivors of a weekend boating accident.

RCMP said yesterday they believe the body of Kenneth Lim, 31, Vancouver, was swept out into the Gulf of Georgia by high tides or heavy seas.

Police discovered the body missing when they went to the remote beach on the island Tuesday.

Lim drowned Sunday when heavy seas swamped his 20-foot cabin cruiser in the Gulf of Georgia.

Two companions, Thomas Alfred Phillips, 48, West Vancouver, and Victor Zloty, 34, Vancouver, clung to the boat and drifted ashore on Texada.

As they rested on the beach Lim's body drifted ashore. Phillips said they carried the body onto the beach and left it covered by a tarpaulin about four feet above the high tide line. Then the survivors walked five miles to a logging camp for help.

TV TALK

By JIM TAYLOR

No doubt Allan "Rocky" Lane is a fine fellow. But like any nice fellow who shows up too often, Rocky is making himself rather unwelcome around our house lately.

Once a night, almost without fail, Rocky shows up on the channel 6 late show, chasing the same old criminals past the same old rock in a slight variation of the same old plot.

No doubt channel 6 bought the whole package of Allan Lane westerns, which used to be Saturday afternoon serials or the second half of the "All Western Giant Action Double Feature" I rushed to see as a boy of 10.

They were perfect for what they were originally intended—harmless adventure for youngsters six to 12. But how many kids between six and 12 are up at 11:30 p.m. these nights?

By that time they are in bed, or should be. Which leaves the rest of us to sit and suffer through Rocky and the Criminals, chapter 1,000.

I'm all in favor of supporting local television, and where two programs of equal worth are in the same time slot, I'll watch the Canadian product every time. But at Rocky and his 12-shot six-shooter I draw the line.

Television will be a heap better, pardners, when Rocky and his friends have gone thataway.

Garden Notes

Plant Surgery Vital

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRMS

I suppose there is always something wrong with the climate, no matter where you live and do your gardening. When I was stationed in Regina many years ago—that prairie gumbo is fantastically rich compared with our soil—we used to count on having our plants torn and flattened by hail about one year out of five. Here, with the mildest climate and the longest growing season in Canada, our bugbear is these sudden windstorms that can whip up in a matter of minutes and make a shambles of our shrubs and trees.

When such injuries occur, it is important they receive prompt attention. Torn tissues, broken branches and split bark offer easy ports of entry to parasitic pests and fungi, rots and decay organisms. Simple injuries may ruin, temporarily, the appearance of a plant, but very seldom do they kill it; it is the secondary infections that do the permanent damage.

Fortunately, plant surgery is a lot easier to grasp than human surgery. The principles are more simple, and are based on the primary facts that the tissues capable of new growth—and therefore of plant repair—lie in the slimy, greenish cambium layer found just under the bark of trees and shrubs. The principle reserves of growth energy are almost always concentrated at the bases of branches and shoots, and at the nodes or joints along a branch.

In pruning back broken or torn branches, therefore, the trick is to cut back either all the way to the parent branch or trunk, or to a junction with another sound branch growing in the desired direction, or to just above a node or leaf joint from which we desire a new shoot to issue. No snags of wood are left, for these would die back to the nearest point of active growth.

The cleaner and smoother the cut, the better. A healing callus starts to creep out from the cambium layer across the surface of the wound, and any roughness or irregularities on this surface hinders the progress of the callus. For this reason, the sharpest and cleanest-cutting tools should be used, and when it is necessary to use a saw, the rough sawn surface should be smoothed with a plane or a sharp knife, and the bark trimmed smoothly around the edge of the wound. Some sort of tree antiseptic should be used, like iodine on a cut finger.

When a branch is torn bodily out of the trunk, leaving a gaping hole, that hole should be cleaned out in the same way a dentist cleans a cavity in a tooth before putting in a filling. Use a mallet and chisel to cut away all discolored and weathered wood. After painting with a tree antiseptic, the cavity can be filled, using concrete with a cement finish or asphalt with a bituminous finish. With very large cavities, a good stunt is to stud the inside with a lot of nails driven only halfway in; the heads of these protruding nails gives something for the concrete or asphalt to grip, thereby anchoring the filling firmly in place.

ART BUCHWALD Muffs Sniff Test

He Has a Nose for Booze

GLASGOW—We had the pleasure the other day of meeting the greatest nose in Scotland. His name is Jimmy Horn and he's 71 years old and he's never tasted a drop of Scotch in his life. He doesn't have to. All he has to do is smell it. That's what makes him such a great nose.

Mr. Horn is chairman of the board of the Ballantine Distillery. He started off as an office boy in 1899 and worked his way up to smelling whisky, which, if we're to believe everything we're told, is the most difficult part of the whole Scotch process.

It seems Scotch is made from a blend of many whiskies, as many as 42 different straight malts and grains, and the only way to mix them is by smelling them and adding some of this and some of that until you have a recipe.

Almost everyone in Scotland uses the same straight whiskies in their blends, so the only difference is Scotch is how much of each straight one is included.

And that's why you have to have a nose.

Mr. Horn doesn't have a large nose. It might be considered a little over medium. The difference between his nose and somebody else's nose is that his is tied to his memory and once he's sniffed a straight whisky he never forgets it.

One of the reasons he's never drunk Scotch, he told us, is that it would interfere with his nose.

"If I had Scotch the night before, there still might be a lingering of the odor the next morning which would confuse me. My nostrils have to be clear."

In order to keep them in top condition, Mr. Horn says, he washes them every morning with hot water and salt.

"What happens if you catch a cold?" we asked Mr. Horn.

"I very rarely catch a cold. But if it happens, I have to eliminate myself from the day's work."

The best time for sniffing is in the morning, and it's best not to do it for more than three hours at a stretch. Since Ballantine's has a recipe which no one wants to fool with, Mr. Horn and his three other noses are in fact really checking to make sure all the straight whiskies used in their blend smell like previous straight whiskies.

"It's a precise science," Mr. Horn said, "and you can't develop it over night."

To show us how difficult it was, Mr. Horn set up a long line of glasses and poured a different straight whisky in each one.

"Now smell each one of them and then make your own recipe for a blended Scotch."

We went outside and sniffed the fresh air of Loch Lomond and then returned and went to work. We stuck our nose in each glass and then poured a little of this and a little of that into a beaker. In an hour we were satisfied with the mixture and turned it over to Mr. Horn and his noses for approval.

"My goodness," Mr. Horn said in horror. "He's just blended Johnny Walker Black Label."

Since Johnny Walker is Ballantine's biggest competitor, no one spoke to us for the rest of the day.

There's a new, revised edition of New York Places and Pleasures by Kate Simon (Meridian), which is now the best-selling guide to New York City.

The first edition came out in 1959 and immediately became a classic in its field. There's no other book like it. It tells you everything about the place—charmingly, fascinatingly, and most informatively.

George F. Gordon of Edmonton, now 78 but still an ardent car fan, drove the route in the Model T Ford and still vividly recalls his experience.

The federal government has invited him to participate in the official opening of the Rogers Pass.

Derby Will Mark Esquimalt Jubilee

Esquimalt Anglers' Association will join in with Esquimalt Golden Jubilee celebrations with a two-day salmon fishing derby Saturday and Sunday from dawn to 3 p.m. each day.

Windup ceremonies and prize and trophy presentations will be at club headquarters at Flaming Beach, immediately following close of the derby on Sunday. If the weather is unfavorable ceremonies will move into the Fraser Street Hall.

SOUVENIRS

Trophies are being donated by the Esquimalt Golden Jubilee Association and will be presented to winners of the Esquimalt 50th birthday party.

Trophies will be awarded for the heaviest salmon caught by a man, heaviest salmon caught by a woman and heaviest salmon caught by an under-16-year-old.

There will also be a number of hidden weight and merchandise prizes for the winners.

TICKETS FOR TWO

Derby tickets, which offer a chance on the consolation prize of a $1,500 boat, motor and trailer, are good for the weekend's derby and for the three-day Cerebral Palsy derby on the Labor Day weekend.

But, every fish weighed in requires a ticket. Ticket holders will be able to purchase extra tickets at the weigh-in station, provided they had already purchased one ticket.

ENTRY FORMS

All salmon, weighing five pounds or more, will also be eligible for the Colonist King Fisherman contest and the Esquimalt Anglers' weigh-in station will have Colonist entry forms on hand.

The association is calling for volunteers to help launch boats and take care of catch parking as many of the members are tied up with parade preparations. Phone Ed Polinsky, EV 4-6147 to offer help.

Tourist Study Approved

Several tourist-conscious Islanders have approved the idea of a survey of the Vancouver Island tourist trade as planned by the Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce.

But they cautioned that any over-all tourist surveys and planning must include the whole Island.

They also reported improved tourist business up-Island from earlier this summer.

Dave Jones, co-chairman of the publicity committee of the Nanaimo Chamber of Commerce, said Victoria's Jaycees will have to have the co-operation of hotels and motels throughout Vancouver Island.

He also expressed interest in a tentative Jaycee proposal for a seminar this winter on the Island tourist industry by interested groups from throughout the Island.

WELD INTO UNIT

"Anything that will give an exchange of ideas and help weld the Island into a unit will be an asset to every facet of the tourist industry on the Island."

Murray Cree of the Cameron Court, Qualicum, stressed that any questionnaire should be put to tourists leaving the Island on all ferries—not just those servicing the Victoria area.

IDEA LAUDED

The idea of a survey was also lauded by Tom Coulter of the Taku resort on Quadra Island. He reported in the past week, Campbell River auto courts have filled to the point where the overflow has filled the two Quadra Island resorts.

Sam Gough, publicity chief of the Parksville Chamber of Commerce, also praised the idea of a tourist study. He said in the Parksville area road-side motel bookings are somewhat down from last year but fishing camps have lately been doing somewhat better.

Mr. Cree said there has been a fair amount of traffic in the Qualicum area and motels are doing reasonably well.

He said those predicting an up-Island tourist boom this season may not have taken sufficiently into account the amount of construction of new accommodation which went on before this season.

Mr. Gough said there was definitely more tourist traffic on the highways this year than last.

All said they were interested in a tentative proposal by the Victoria Jaycees for a seminar this winter on Island tourist trade. Mr. Coulter stressed there should be representatives from all Island centres.

Drive Goes On

Hospital Fund At $262,000 Chief Pleased

The building fund campaign for St. Joseph's Hospital has reached $262,000 in cash and pledges. The drive will continue until the goal of $350,000 is reached, officials said last night.

Dr. Peter Banks, co-chairman of the campaign, said he is pleased at the results so far and has no doubts the remaining $88,000 will be raised "in due course." The campaign, slated to go on three years, began eight months ago.

FIRST PHASE

The first phase of work on expansion of the hospital was completed this month. Two new boilers, which will be required to provide for the new laundry and for heating of the new wing, have been installed at a total cost of about $100,000.

Over-all cost of the project is $2,700,000. Included will be a new five-storey, 115-bed wing and essential expansion and improvements in existing areas of the hospital. Bulk of the money needed is being granted by various levels of government.

CANVASS PLANS

At a recent meeting plans were laid for further canvassing. A number of employee and professional groups, about 200 firms and a few individuals are yet to be canvassed. Other citizens have been invited to mail contributions.

Exhibition Milk Blushes

VANCOUVER (CP)—Ever drink pink milk?

They're doing it at the Pacific National Exhibition.

The pink milk has been made available by the industry to fair patrons through a dispensing machine. It tastes like a mild milkshake.

The milk—mixed with strawberry extract which flavors it and gives it a rich pink hue—apparently results from an idea planted with producers by provincial Agriculture Minister Frank Richter.

He told them they should sell more milk. One way to do it would be to offer something new—like the colored milk they sell in Europe.

The industry is watching the experiment.

Asian Flu May Return

OLYMPIA (AP)—Asian flu may strike again this winter, Dr. Ernest A. Ager, head of the communicable disease section of the Washington State health department, said Tuesday.

Ager said major nation-wide epidemics of influenza have long been known to occur in cycles. He said the last bout with Asian influenza was in the winter of 1960. Other severe outbreaks were in the spring of 1958 and fall of 1957.

Ager said an estimated 1,400 Washington deaths were caused by the three waves.

'Nosy' Council Gets Tweak

Esquimalt's bid to take the Indian reserve under the municipal wing came in for a gentle ribbing from Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes last night.

Using a parable of a nosy farmer to illustrate the point, the lieutenant-governor said he had always believed "Esquimalt to be a municipality that minds its own business until I read in the paper the other day that the reeve was anxious to take over the Indian reserve."

"Chief Edward Joe told him in no uncertain terms to mind his own business," said Lieutenant-Governor Pearkes.

He was referring to an informal comment by Reeve A. C. Wurtele that he would like to see the reserve land come under municipal jurisdiction.

"We are satisfied with things as they are," was the comment of Chief Joe.

Torrid Film

While showing a film on hospital evacuation in case of fire to a group of hospital employees in Victoria's No. 1 fire hall yesterday, Deputy Chief John Abbott looked down at the projector in disbelief—it was on fire.

The projector burned out in about five minutes, but the hospital employees—far too fascinated with proceedings to evacuate—stood fast to watch the fun.

Laying salvaged flooring in place at Westerham School are Philip Sealy and 16-year-old son Robin. —(Peter Chapman photo.)

Replaces Plywood

Old Charming Floor Adorns City School

Principal of a private school in Victoria will have special concern about the condition of his gymnasium floor—he installed it the hard way. Philip Sealy, principal of Westerham School, 1765 Rockland, and his son Robin spent two weeks removing oak flooring from the second floor of the Old Charming Inn during demolition of the old landmark by the Oak Bay waterfront.

They carted the wood home in a station wagon, removed and straightened the nails and are now nearly finished putting the flooring down in the school's gymnasium and dressing rooms.

Plywood floors were used for the past three years in this part of the private school, said Mrs. Eileen Sealy.

Perfection, Unity By Ciccimarra

By INA D. D. UTHOFF

We already know Richard Ciccimarra well for his paintings in which the human element predominates. But we may not be as familiar with his paintings of flowers which have been shown occasionally around town.

From such apparently simple but highly stylized figure subjects, many people had the idea that this painter was not interested in drawing. The idea that a painting must be meticulously detailed and highly "finished" to be worthwhile is one that is shared by many people.

They do not recognize the power which must lie behind the simple statement in line and color.

Nothing can be omitted successfully without complete awareness of what exists, and there is nothing harder than making the selection of useable material, after which, detail may be developed or not as necessity makes itself felt. In the Ciccimarra water colors of flowers, the detail is perfect, the drawing mastery.

and the color true but rich, but the perfection of detail is never allowed to break into the unity of any part of a painting and at no time is the fluidity of the paint sacrificed.

This puts flower painting on a very high level.

The major part of this collection has been purchased for the Glenbow Foundation of Calgary, which has already amassed an important group of Canadian paintings.

It is a pity that Fenwick Lansdowne was not able to obtain more important examples of his wild flower paintings for this show.

What he has in is work of the past and does not have much of the merit attached to the paintings of birds which have brought him such widespread renown in recent years.

In the Spencer Gallery some paintings are being shown by W. R. Cryer of this city, an untrained enthusiast in his 70s who is now confined to the house but who finds that painting makes life highly interesting for himself and recommends it to all over 70 years of age who have any ability.

One or two of the paintings show good color. Satellite Pass Cottage and The Retreat, Patricia Bay, are the most promising.

For Hospital Stone Laid In 1875

Eighty-seven years ago yesterday, Aug. 22, 1875, the cornerstone of St. Joseph's Hospital was laid by Hon. John S. Helmcken.

On that day Bishop Charles John Seghers, "before an august assembly of people," declared that "irrespective of creed or nationality, St. Joseph's Hospital will open its doors to such as are afflicted with sickness; it will afford relief and comfort to persons of every condition and standing in society."

LEFT IN MUSEUM

The complete text of the address was presented to Dr. Helmcken. In 1923 it was returned to the Sisters of St. Ann by the doctor's daughter, Dolly, now Mrs. Edith L. Higgins.

Today it is kept in the museum of St. Ann's Academy, along with the silver trowel used in the ceremony.

Forgery Case Remanded

Nell Gordon Dalgaty, 827 Princess, was remanded one week for plea when he appeared in city police court yesterday, charged with forging a cheque for $125.

Bail was set at one surety of $500.

Dalgaty was arrested Tuesday when the accountant in a bank became suspicious and called police.

Violin Marks Earn Medal For City Boy

Word has come recently from the Toronto Conservatory of Music that Richard Parkinson, 15-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Parkinson of 1323 Pandora Avenue, has won the silver medal for the highest marks in B.C. in Grade 6 violin examinations.

Richard has been studying with Miss Dorothy Francis recently but was also a member of the school's violin classes and with the Central Junior Orchestra. He is, incidentally, also an accomplished accordionist.

Kelowna's Flowers Top City's

City officials yesterday admitted Mayor R. F. Parkinson of Kelowna might be right when he said the Okanagan city's flower baskets are better than Victoria's.

"I think ours are wonderful, if theirs are better, more power to them," Mayor R. B. Wilson said diplomatically.

And city parks administrator Herbert Warren blamed poor August weather for spoiling Victoria's famous flower baskets.

"Mayor Parkinson should have been here in June or July. . . . He would have felt differently then," he added.

Food Poison In Hospital Investigated

EDMONTON (CP)—An outbreak of food poisoning early this month at the University of Alberta Hospital here is being investigated, an official said Wednesday.

Hospital superintendent Dr. Bernard Snell said about 23 patients contracted salmonellosis, which causes diarrhoea and fever. Another 50 persons, including patients and hospital personnel, were treated for symptoms of the illness.

Dr. Snell said everyone affected recovered quickly.

He said food served prior to the outbreak is being analyzed at the provincial laboratory in Edmonton to determine the exact cause of the trouble. "While no definite conclusion has been reached, we're suspicious of a meringue power used to make dessert," Dr. Snell said.

Frost Feared On Prairies

EDMONTON (CP)—The provincial department of agriculture says grain crops in central and northern Alberta, which are maturing late this year, could be hit by killing frost before harvest. Late spring and heavy summer rains have delayed maturing of crops.

Assassins Fail In Attempt On De Gaulle

PARIS (AP)—Machine-gun bursts fired by assassins from ambush in a quiet Paris suburb shot out the rear window and two tires of President de Gaulle's speeding car Wednesday night but he and his party escaped unharmed.

Two vehicles and gunmen at the roadside figured in the assassination attempt against the 71-year-old president, police said.

SHOWERED WITH GLASS

De Gaulle was showered with splintered glass when one of the estimated 130 to 150 bullets fired at his car smashed the rear window. Another bullet drilled a hole within inches of where the president usually sits, the interior ministry reported.

In all, six bullets were reported to have hit the presidential car.

The interior ministry said in a statement to reporters that splintered glass and incendiary grenades were found unexploded at the scene of the attack.

CHRONICLE

The ministry said bursts of gunfire came from two cars parked on opposite sides of the road, catching de Gaulle's car in a crossfire, and witnesses reported there were several gunmen on foot firing from behind the parked cars.

Elysee Palace, the presidential residence in the heart of Paris, late Wednesday night issued a communique saying: "Several bursts of gunfire shattered the rear window of de Gaulle's car and shot out two tires."

SECRET ARMY

"We can only assume the attack was made by the European Secret Army," a police officer said.

The Secret Army Organization has been blamed for previous assassination plots designed to block de Gaulle's successful campaign for Algerian independence.

FOURTH ATTEMPT

The interior ministry announced that gunmen fired three bursts at the presidential sedan carrying de Gaulle, his wife and son-in-law on an airport outside Paris.

It was the fourth reported assassination attempt against the French president in less than a year.

Minor Parties 'Prop' Tories

OTTAWA (CP)—Liberal Leader Pearson attacked the stand of the Social Credit and New Democratic parties against an early election Wednesday, saying they appear to be looking for ways and means of keeping the Conservatives in office.

UN Budget $86,649,500

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—Acting Secretary General U Thant yesterday submitted a budget estimate of $86,649,500 for the United Nations in 1963.

The estimate represented an increase of $4,004,700 above appropriations for 1962.

Thant reported a UN deficit of $111,000,000 at the end of 1961, when losses of resources amounted to $14,000,000 and total liabilities at $125,000,000.

Royal Children In Sailing Class

INVERNESS, Scotland (Reuters)—The Queen's two eldest children, Prince Charles and Princess Anne, stepped onto the shores of Loch Ness Wednesday at the end of a five-day lesson in seamanship from their ex-sailor father, Prince Philip.

They came ashore at the town of Dores after a 23-mile sail down the equally Loch Ness.

Glance At Past

Spanish Mines Closed

MADRID (Reuters)—Three more coal mines in the Asturias area were closed Wednesday, putting at least 8,000 the number of miners locked out or on strike in northwest Spain.

The three mines, employing a total of 3,114 miners, were ordered closed by the authorities after the miners began a slow-down.

DEFEND NEEDS

The labor ministry broadcast a communique charging that labor demands in the area were being made without regard for proper legal channels. It said the ministry would not hesitate to take measures at its disposal to defend the needs of the community.

Miners in the Turon district of Asturias province, where eight mines have been closed since last week, were reported to have asked the civil governor of Oviedo to reopen the closed pits.

LABOR UNREST

Renewed labor unrest began in the Asturias coal districts last Saturday when a group of miners walked out at noon, demanding a half-holiday on Saturdays. Other miners were locked out of their jobs after they staged a slowdown in support of their fellow workers.

Sewer Blasts Kill 4

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Four workmen were killed Wednesday when a series of explosions jarred a sewer tunnel 40 feet underground.

Firemen, probing through dense gas fumes, believed responsible for the blasts, recovered the torn and burned bodies of two of the diggers by noon. The firemen inched their way through the narrow, 26-foot tunnel to recover the other bodies by midafternoon.

Authorities said they believe the fumes came from petroleum products which had seeped into the ground over the years. The area is near several petroleum company storage yards and refineries in an industrial section of south Philadelphia.

Reds Stage Huge Blast

UPSALA, Sweden—The Soviet Union Wednesday detonated a nuclear bomb with the explosive power of 9,000,000 tons of TNT in the Novaya Zemlya testing grounds, Swedish scientists reported.

Hitler Idol Of Caouette!

MONTREAL (CP)—Real Caouette, deputy national leader of the Social Credit party, is quoted in Le Magazine Maclean as saying that his political heroes are Mussolini and Hitler.

In an article by Helen Plote in the current issue of the magazine Mr. Caouette was asked: "Who are your political heroes of history?"

He replied "Mussolini and Hitler" and added:

"Fascism, like socialism and communism, is a dictatorship. Social Credit seeks the liberty of the individual. I admire Mussolini's quality as leader and I regret that he was a Fascist. I admire in Hitler his economic reforms and I consider that he brought his people out of misery. I regret that he employed for war instead of for peace the ideas which he had."

"As for their dictatorial struggles and their racial struggles they have never been an example for me," he added.

"During the depression years," he said, "while we in Canada were in economic misery, these men brought prosperity to their countries."

"There is no question for me of admiring their racial policies. The extermination of Jews, for example, was anti-Christian. There is no question of following such policies."

A-Sub Rendezvous

Historic Meeting Beneath the Pole

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy announced yesterday two United States submarines have completed a "historic rendezvous" under the North Polar ice cap. He said he wanted to congratulate all involved in the feat.

After their under-ice meeting, the two submarines surfaced through an opening in the ice. The subs are the Skate and the Sea Dragon.

TELLS OF EXPLOITS

Kennedy opened the conference by announcing the exploits of the atomic submarines.

Asked about the Russian action in withdrawing its Berlin command, the president said the central theme of the U.S. response would be that the Soviet Union could not withdraw from responsibility in Berlin.

In response to a question about the Soviet Union's exploit of putting two men into orbit at the same time, Kennedy commented that "we are second to the Soviet Union in long-range boosters."

U.S. BEHIND

He said the U.S. will be behind for a while, but that before the end of the decade he expects it to be ahead. It is costing much money to catch up after a late start, he went on. The Soviet Union started with a lead and is determined to maintain it, he said, but the United States started late.

Anyone who tries to deny the U.S. is behind, he said, is deceiving the American people. But he said his administration is leading a vast effort to catch up, with a space budget as big as the last eight combined.

CONSIDER STEPS

Kennedy said the defence department is considering what steps might need to be taken for national security in the light of the recent twin-orbit feat of the Russians.

Kennedy was asked if he could guarantee that the $100,000,000 in United Nations bonds he wants Congress to vote to purchase would not be used to finance UN military action against Katanga province to force the secessionist province to rejoin the rest of the Congo.

The president replied that he felt the most important step to avoid chaos in the Congo would be for the two rival leaders, Katanga President Tshombe and national Premier Aduia, to reach an agreement.

MORAL RIGHT

Among other matters arising at the press conference: Foreign aid—A reporter asked whether countries which receive aid from the United States have a moral right to engage in business deals with Communist bloc countries.

Kennedy said there are countries receiving U.S. aid which also receive aid from the Communists, and he said it was not a moral issue, but one of judgment. In that connection he mentioned India and called it an extremely important free, non-Communist country.

SEE KHRUSHCHEV?

Khrushchev—Asked if he would see Premier Khrushchev, in event the Soviet leader comes to the United Nations session in New York this fall, Kennedy said he had made no plans but would hope to talk with him in such a case. He added that he considered it a good idea for heads of state to maintain relations.

LONDON (Reuters)—Britain, which treats drug addiction as a disease and not a crime, had 479 registered drug addicts in 1961, an increase of 23 over 1960, the Home Office reported Wednesday.

France Joins Space Race

PARIS (UPI)—France plans to join the space race, the government announced last night.

Information Minister Alain Peyrefitte said France is scheduled to place a 100-pound satellite in orbit in March, 1963. It will be followed shortly by others three and four times as large, he said.

Army Fights Fires

MARSEILLE, France (Reuters)—Reinforcements were rushed here Wednesday to aid 2,000 troops and firemen battling fires to the east and northwest of Marseille that have destroyed hundreds of acres of forest, three small houses and several schools.

Firefighting headquarters said the worst outbreaks had been brought under control but they feared new outbreaks should hot, dry wind begin to blow.

Eastward, along the Riviera, another fire stopped vacation traffic on La Route Napoleon. Smaller fires raged near the town of Collobrieres and paratroopers joined firemen fighting fires since Tuesday night in the western Pyrenees near Saint-Michel de Cuxa.

Smoke Board Takes Step To 'Retire' Inspector

A week after severe criticism was levelled at city smoke inspector Thomas Walker, the city's smoke advisory board took steps which will likely result in forced retirement for the official.

The board unanimously recommended to city council that a full-time smoke inspector should be employed. City council is expected to approve the recommendation at its meeting this afternoon.

Mr. Walker, at 76, is beyond the city's compulsory retirement age for employees. He has been acting in a part-time capacity since his appointment in 1956.

Smoke board chairman Ald.

Geoffrey Edgewood levelled criticism at Mr. Walker at a board meeting Aug. 14.

"As an employee of the city at a public meeting I don't think it is proper for the smoke inspector to give any sort of allegiance (to industry) in this matter," Ald. Edgewood said.

"I might even use the term to hinder progress . . . to be too soft."

LACK OF ENFORCEMENT

Oblique criticism was levelled again during yesterday's meeting. A letter from E. P. Hudson, for Stewart and Hudson Ltd., included:

"For a long time we have felt there was a real lack of enforcement. We had a feeling that the inspection department favored the offenders. . . .

"For this reason alone it is absolutely necessary that the smoke and pollution inspection be maintained on an efficient basis."

ALL IN FAVOR

Each member of the smoke board spoke briefly in favor of appointing a full-time inspector before they voted to make the recommendation to city council.

No reference was made to Mr. Walker's ineligibility to retain his post on a full-time basis.

Merger Vote For Bowness

CALGARY (CP)—The town of Bowness will let voters decide in October's civic election whether they want to have the functions of town council and school board merged. Under the urban county system of government members of both bodies would form the council. A majority "yes" vote would make Bowness the first municipality in Alberta to adopt the system.

No Obligation CPR's Stand

Maverick city alderman Geoffrey Edgewood angrily charged yesterday that the CPR has at least a moral obligation—and possibly a legal obligation, too—to provide ferry service between Vancouver Island and the mainland.

His charge followed close on the heels of a statement by CPR general manager J. N. Fraine that the company had met all its obligations on Vancouver Island.

'OWE MILLIONS'

"Morally, they owe the Island millions of dollars over and above anything they have given us," Ald. Edgewood said.

"They have cut the service between the Island and the mainland to one boat a day but they are holding on tightly to their $100,000,000 pot on the Island."

Ald. Edgewood was referring to a 150-mile-long strip of Vancouver Island originally granted to the E & N Railway Co. but acquired by the CPR when it bought out the E & N company in 1905.

CONDITION

"The land grants, according to the record, were given to the E & N all right, but they were also going to establish boat service."

"To my interpretation, provision of a boat service was one of the conditions of the grant."

Ald. Edgewood refused to accept a CPR claim that the company has no legal responsibility to provide a ferry service for the Island.

"I want all interested people to write to the CPR and the editor of the Colonist to express their opinions," he said.

SUPPORT NANAIMO

"Nanaimo has a committee at work and I think we should support them."

Mr. Fraine's statement earlier yesterday contended that the provincial government grant to the E & N company was an inducement to the company to build, maintain and operate the railway, together with a telegraph line.

"The Act also authorized that company to extend its rail lines to Victoria and Courtenay and provide steamship services," Mr. Fraine said. "However, there was no obligation to do so in either case. Over the years, 75 per cent of the original lands have been disposed of and the people of Vancouver Island as a whole are benefiting from the forest industries established in these lands.

CAPABLE SERVICE

"The (B.C.) Toll Authority is operating a service capable of handling all of the Vancouver-Nanaimo ferry traffic. . . ."

Mr. Fraine denied his statement about the government's Vancouver-Nanaimo service was a suggestion that CPR planned to withdraw completely from the run.

Mr. Fraine visited Mayor R. B. Wilson at city hall yesterday morning. Later, Mayor Wilson wrote to Mayor Pete Maffeo of Nanaimo, expressing concern at reduction of the CPR service.

POSITION CONFUSED

Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston said yesterday the provincial government checked into the original land grant agreement about a year ago and found the legal position confused.

He said the E & N company was given $750,000 and a 2,000,000-acre land grant as an inducement to build the railway with power to extend it to Victoria and Comox and to add ferry connections to the mainland, but added:

"The legal position appeared unclear as to the duration of their obligation when we looked at it. . . . Was it forever and a day? It wasn't clear."

Albertans to Hear Of Island Winter

A bid to lengthen Vancouver Island's 1962 tourist season will be made in September by the B.C. Toll Authority which is arranging a goodwill tour to Alberta.

A party of 30 civic, business and tourist officials from all parts of the Island will visit Calgary, Lethbridge, Medicine Hat, Red Deer and Edmonton on the five-day tour.

COME IN WINTER

They will try to talk the Albertans into coming here for winter holidays, said tour organizer Ronald Worley, assistant general manager of the B.C. Ferry System.

"We can sell them on the idea that the Canadian dollar is worth more in Canada and that with the austerity program in force Canadian dollars should be spent in Canada this year," he said.

SELLING POINT

Another selling point will be that prairie travellers can reach B.C. by an all-Canadian route with the driving time cut by one day because of the new Rogers Pass.

The tour will leave Vancouver Island in two groups Sept. 4, one from Victoria and the other from Nanaimo. They will link at Tsawwassen for the trip to Calgary and spend the night at Kamloops.

The Alberta government will join the city of Calgary in hosting a luncheon for the

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

"Dear Dr. Molner: for several years my sister has been treated for a spastic colon. Several months ago the doctor put her on a diet without starch, saying she had low blood sugar. She follows the diet pretty well but will not give up coffee and cigarettes from morning till night. It was after my sister had spells of blindness that lasted for half-hour periods that the doctor put her on the starch-free diet.—ANKIOUS."

Low blood sugar isn't a disease in itself, it's a reflection of other disorders that cause the drop.

Nor is it the opposite of diabetes, even though it is true that in one the blood sugar becomes too high, in the other too low. Diabetes is a distinct disease. There is insufficient insulin to make use of the sugars in the food, and either insulin (or sometimes drugs) must be used to help keep the sugar level down, or the diet must be restricted, or both. Otherwise the excess sugar quickly becomes dangerous.

SUGAR NEEDED

With low blood sugar, it is a matter of the blood sugar at times being used up—and the sugar is needed to provide energy.

Low blood sugar is often seen in nervous, tense individuals, which appears to fit with your sister. Coffee and tobacco contribute to her nervous attitude as well as to aggravate the spastic colon.

The low-starch diet, with high protein substituted, is important because the protein is absorbed and turned into blood sugar slowly.

But one can't successfully tinker with the blood sugar level without doing something about the psychic or nervous irritability.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Can virginity be lost any way other than through sexual intercourse? Please explain anatomical virginity. Please answer this, it is very important.—Q.Q."

In medical terminology, virginity means there has been no sexual intercourse. By anatomical virginity, you probably refer to a rupture of the hymen (or membrane), from other causes. Strenuous activity, injury, necessary examination can do so, and many virgins have had it happen.

Note to Mrs. M. R.: Bee stings can at times be truly dangerous if a person is sensitive to the venom. A gentleman who raises bees recently wrote me a most interesting story. He had been stung many times over a period of years—but the last time he almost lost his life. He had, for some reason, finally become sensitive.

Big Week

Albernis Scramble For Tye

PORT ALBERNI — Plans for the district's Tye Week are completed with activities to get underway on Sunday.

Albernis Valley Tye Club will give away $400 in prize money during the three-day open derby closing on Labor Day and providing the grand finale for Tye Week.

The cruise on Sunday is open to fishermen and non-fishermen and their families who will spend a day aboard the Lady Rose and at Bamfield. Round trip tickets for adults are $3, while children accompanying their parents will be charged $1 for the trip.

LARGEST, SMALLEST

Starting at daylight the same day will be contests for tye fishing enthusiasts. The Campbell's Jewellers' trophy will go to the man catching the largest fish during the week, while the best woman catching the largest tye will receive the Chamber of Commerce trophy.

For junior members, competition will be for the A.V. Tye Club trophy.

A watch, donated by Jansen's Jewellers, will go to the person catching the smallest fish of the week.

DOLLAR A DAY

The three-day open derby will be held within the boundaries of the Beacon at the mouth of Soaness River and Chapp Point, with Port Narrows as the weigh-in station. No fish will be accepted in the daily competition after 9 p.m. Entry fee will be $1 a day.

Each day the first prize will be $100 and the second, $25. In addition there will be a $25 prize for the largest fish of the three days, and there will be a daily hidden weight prize. Trophies will also be given for the first and second prize winning fish on each day of the derby.

Taxpayers Stage Rush

Sanich tax officials were flooded with such a rush of last-minute tax payments that yesterday they were still processing mail received on Aug. 15.

Deputy collector Kenneth Middleton said it will be next week before all the receipts are processed.

PORT ALBERNI—The Chamber of Commerce here authorized a letter deploring curtailment of ferry service between Vancouver and Nanaimo, but opinions expressed at the meeting showed that all members were in favor of trying to force the CPR to maintain the present schedule.

President William Beckingham said "Personally, I do not weep for the loss of the CPR service. We have had far better service from the provincial government."

A suggestion that the chamber go on record as supporting the action of Mayor Pete Macleod and his Nanaimo council in regard to the situation was opposed by the president on the grounds that it is not yet known what action is to be taken by the Nanaimo group.

TAKE TERMINAL
Ald. Les Hammer criticized Canadian Pacific policy in regard to Vancouver Island. He said the company had been gradually cutting services, starting with the elimination some years ago of the rail passenger runs to Port Alberni, and continuing with curtailment of ferry schedules from Victoria and Nanaimo.

He suggested that if the CPR is permitted to drop the Princess of Nanaimo and Princess Elaine schedules, the government should be encouraged to take over the Nanaimo terminal in order that a downtown to downtown service could be maintained.

The higher cost of running the ferry from the Nanaimo terminal to Vancouver's downtown docks was pointed out by E. G. Stroyan who contended that any run exceeding two hours involved extra expense for manning the vessels.

NO INEFFICIENCY

Objecting to action to put pressure on the CPR, Fred Stanfield said that the Public Utilities Commission had the power to protect public interests.

He denied that the Canadian Pacific had shown inefficiency in operation and declared that some of those who were insisting on the company carrying on at a loss would be the last to entertain a suggestion that they should operate their own businesses at a deficit.

During the meeting members discussed an invitation to take part in a goodwill tour to Alberta for the purpose of publicizing Vancouver Island as a winter holiday site. It was decided that funds were not sufficient to pay a delegate's expenses.

A report given at the meeting showed that membership now stands at 116.

Greater Victoria Action

Rowdyism Faces Crackdown

By HAL LEIREN

Police in the Greater Victoria area have declared war on a wave of vandalism and rowdyism, which in recent days has seen church and school windows smashed, women threatened by rowdies and decorative trees stripped of foliage.

Police patrols throughout Greater Victoria have been increased to prevent recurrence of vandalism.

In Saanich, where rock-throwing hoodlums smashed irreplaceable stained glass windows in St. Aidan's Church during the weekend, Deputy Police Chief R. J. Hamilton said: "There is too much of this going on in the district. We intend to make a real crack-down on the culprits."

NO ALARM

Victoria Police Chief John Blackstock and Oak Bay Police Chief Robert Smith agreed there has been an upswing of rowdyism in their districts, but added it has not been enough to cause alarm.

"It's something we expect during holidays," said Chief Blackstock.

INCREASED PATROLS

Chief Smith said Oak Bay police have increased patrols in the uplands and along Esplanade, because street light bulbs have been smashed.

Three weeks ago police broke up an after-midnight gang of teenagers gathered at Oak Bay Beach to watch a fight.

Hoodlums have been reported from all three municipalities.

SCHOOL HIT

Only two days after the window-smashing spree at St. Aidan's Church in Saanich, where 130 panes were broken, vandals smashed 27 windows in North Ward School.

A woman walking in Beacon

Hill Park this week was set upon by a pack of five young hoodlums, one of them a girl. They tore her purse from her hand.

30 CLIMB WALL

An 18-year-old girl called police Monday night when 10 youths drove up in a car and started climbing the front of the building to the second-storey apartment where she lived with three other girls.

A Saanich woman walking alone children Sunday was accosted by two youths who tried to kick her dog into the water.

NO EXPLANATION

Saanich Deputy Chief Hamilton said he could find no explanation for the wave of malicious destruction.

"I can't see how anyone could do that to a church... which is respected by all," he said.

DISRESPECT FOR LAW

Oak Bay Chief Smith said his major concern was the increasing disrespect for law among young people.

"Many of them don't feel they are doing anything wrong when they interfere with persons and properties of others," he explained.

FATTENS EGGS

Saanich Reeve Stanley Murphy, asked to comment, said he disagreed with publicity given the vandalism.

"It just fattens the ego of these youngsters," he said. "I am confident the police department can handle it."

New Agency Chief:

Love, Not Wealth Cuts Delinquency

Emotional jungles, not asphalt jungles, are the breeding ground for today's "Dead End Kid" hoodlums, Gordon R. Wright, new executive director of Victoria's Family and Children's Service said yesterday.

The man who will replace David E. Woodworth as chief administrator of the agency says the concept of poverty being the chief cause of juvenile delinquency is outdated.

Emotional instability in the parents begets problem children, he said. And the same emotional instability acts as the principal agent in creating depressed economic conditions.

POVERTY SYMPTOM

For many social workers have come to believe that poverty is a symptom, rather than a cause, of the emotional problems that split families or send a youngster onto a trail that all too often ends in police court.

"Most people are better off today than they were in the 1930s, when times were tough," said Mr. Wright.

But the change in the social structure has been so rapid that families now find themselves "socially disoriented."

CAN'T TRANSLATE

There's no rule of thumb that can determine the parent of the 1960s was better than the parent of today.

"One problem is that the parent of today can't translate into modern-day terms the things he learned as a child in that period," said Mr. Wright.

Strength, stability and love are the determining factors that can keep youngsters out of trouble, rather than a fat bank account or a show-place home.

EARLY OCTOBER

Mr. Wright, an RCAF veteran and former supervisor in the Young Offenders Unit at Oakalla Prison Farm, will assume his new duties early in October.

He received his formal education at UBC, where he attained his BA, bachelor's degree in social work, then a master's degree.

Prior to his appointment here, he was with the Greater Vancouver Family Service Agency, employed as a case worker and supervisor.

GROUP COUNSELLING

One project he hopes to carry further here is group counselling.

"We can't reach them all, and this would enable us to double our case-load," he said.

Margaree Off

Sea trials will start today for destroyer escort HMCS Margaree after a month of repairs following sabotage of one of her main engine gears.

Esquimalt's 50th-birthday party got roaring last night with more than 800 persons on hand to give it a rousing send-off.

More than 300 guests sat down to the golden jubilee banquet held at the Esquimalt Sports Centre prior to an open house entertainment program and heard birthday greetings from Lieutenant-Governor Pearson, Victoria mayor R. B. Wilson, and reeve George Murdoch of Oak Bay, and Stanley Murphy of Saanich.

PIONEERS LAUDED

Esquimalt's planners were lauded by the lieutenant-governor for "laying the foundation for the prosperous municipality in which you now live."

"I was here 30 years ago," he continued, "but by force of circumstances I moved to Saanich and then Victoria, so you must consider me a renegade, or even a foreigner."

SPECIAL MEMORIES

He told guests the municipality held special memories for him, "since 37 years ago to this day, I arrived here to stay at the home of Mrs. Fitzherbert Hullen, and two days later I was married to my wife."

Earlier, Mayor Wilson told dinner guests Esquimalt's reeve and council were held in "great respect" by members of other municipal governments in Greater Victoria.

FROM OAK BAY

Reeve Murdoch brought sincere congratulations from the council and people of Oak Bay.

Following presentation of the gift to Esquimalt council—a desk set—Reeve Wurtels said he was "deeply moved."

"We will find a very nice place for this on the desk at the head of the council table," he added.

SEVEN-MAN TEAM

"We like to think that Esquimalt council works as a seven-man team... we feel that is the way the municipality of Greater Victoria should work, and we feel that over the years we have achieved a measure of success."

He paid tribute to Esquimalt's "very friendly neighbors to the north"—the Esquimalt and Songhees Indian bands.

LAUDS WORK

Reeve Wurtels went on to laud the work carried out by former reeves Thomas Hatfield and Magistrate A. J. Thomas, during the "trying days" when the municipality was greatly in need of basic services, with little revenue with which to provide them.

Following the dinner, the doors of the centre were thrown open to the general public, and a nine-act variety show featuring local and imported entertainers was presented.

GUESTS ASKED

Head table guests included MLA Herb Bruch and his wife; Air Commodore G. G. Truscott, Officer Commanding 5 Air Division, and Mrs. Truscott, Major and Mrs. R. B. Malgrize; Rev. J. A. and Mrs. Roberts; Rev. T. G. and Mrs. Griffiths; Rev. Father Lewis MacLennan and Commodore and Mrs. J. A. Charles.

'Trojan' Snake Captures Museum

Provincial museum officials were happy about the gift several days ago of a live garter snake.

Yesterday they realized their gift had the properties of a Trojan horse as the reptile gave birth to 24 young—and their happiness turned to uneasiness.

The exhibit was crawling with snakes and officials were pondering how they were going to feed them all.

Museum director Dr. G. Clifford Carl said he probably will keep the snakes on exhibit for awhile and release them later.

If children bring live earthworms, slugs and insects in jars to the museum it will relieve the food problem, he said.

The 27-inch snake came from Golden, B.C. Although it is a common garter snake, it was "attractive" in that it had a dark body with yellow stripes and reddish marks.

"We were a little surprised and unprepared" for the live birth, said Dr. Carl. "We don't want any more garter snakes for awhile."

No Wreck; Just Rock

VANCOUVER (CP) — BCAF Search and Rescue said Wednesday what was reported to be a shipwreck on Vancouver Island may have been an outcropping of rock.

The BCAF checked a report from a forest service lookout that he had seen the tall section of a plane on Mount Arrowsmith at the foot of Comox glacier.

The search plane found nothing.

Courtenay To Review Sewer Scale

COURTENAY — Sewer charges are to be reviewed when the final account for the sewer system installation is received.

Council agreed to this step after complaints this week from small business owners, operating their businesses from buildings which also house their dwellings, that sewer charges were too high.

According to the bylaw they must pay $2.50 a month for their homes and $2.50 for their businesses although the only toilet facilities may be in the dwelling house portion of their premises.

It has been suggested that there should be a discounting scale for store-house buildings as there is with water. Where two or more units are involved the first is charged $8 and subsequent units $1.25.

Moon Surface Rocks, Not Dust

LONDON (Reuters) — Recent Soviet observations have shown that the surface of the moon is made up of rocks and not dust, Tass news agency said Tuesday.

It quoted Viktor Tsiol, an astrophysicist from Kazakhstan as saying that a study of the color properties of sections of the moon's surface showed "it is not covered with a thick layer of dust, but has a porous structure, and consists of rocks similar to terrestrial basalt."

"A spaceship landing on the moon is in no danger of sinking in a sea of dust," he said.

Kayak Carries Pair South from Juneau

NANAIMO—Hard on the heels of Richard Porter, who arrived in Nanaimo on Monday after cycling across Canada from Montreal, a couple of American university students put in here in a kayak, on their way by sea from Juneau, Alaska, to Seattle.

Chris and Pat Knight, 19 and 21 years of age, made this epic journey in spite of head winds and heavy seas.

which proved troublesome to many larger craft.

Their kayak is 21 feet long and decked over, except for the two cockpits. It had to carry all their equipment and supplies for camping on the way. It was built in Sweden, of birch, and weighs only 60 pounds.

Chris and Pat began their trip June 28. They found the experience "tremendous".

Volunteers Racing Calendar

FORT ALBERT — Hundreds of hours of volunteer work have gone into the 6th barn which will be ready for occupancy in time for the Alberta District Fall Fair opening on September 6.

Klansmen Club members have been helped in construction of the 58x120 building by volunteers from the Farmers Institute and 4-H clubs as they rushed the project through in time to house junior farmers' exhibits. Roofing of the structure is now underway.

OFFICIAL CEREMONY — Fall Fair board president Ted Okrasinski said that it is hoped to have an official opening ceremony during the fair as the building is put to use for the first time.

Still to be completed are committee rooms, washrooms and offices which will be added following the fair. It is expected that 4-H clubs will use the premises for meetings and functions throughout the year. Another project being carried out by volunteers is an extension to the Klansmen's concession stand. Room is being provided for a deep fry unit in order that Klansmen may serve French fries along with hot dogs, hamburgers and other fare.

Official opening of the 17th annual AD Fall Fair will be at 8 p.m. on Thursday, September 6, with Agriculture Minister Frank Richter officiating.

Mr. Okrasinski stated that commercial display space is sold out already and that interest has been shown in competitive exhibits. He predicted a particularly good livestock show. Enquiries have been received from as far away as Alberta.

RECORD INTAKE — Canada's largest yearly total for immigrants was 69,670 in 1961.

High Rise Project Killed

NANAIMO—The long-delayed plans of a Nanaimo realty company to build apartments in the new hospital area have suffered a new setback.

At Tuesday's meeting of the advisory planning commission the company's proposal to build high-rise apartments was finally killed, although permission will probably be given to erect two-story buildings.

Even these must wait, however, until the report of a town planner, who has been engaged to survey and make recommendations for the whole area, has been received.

Assassins Fail In Attempt On De Gaulle

PARIS (AP)—Machine-gun bursts fired by assassins from ambush in a quiet Paris suburb shot out the rear window and two tires of President de Gaulle's speeding car Wednesday night, but he and his party escaped unharmed.

Two vehicles and gunmen at the roadside figured in the assassination attempt against the 71-year-old president, police said.

SHOWERED WITH GLASS

De Gaulle was showered with splintered glass when one of the estimated 120 to 150 bullets fired at his car smashed the rear window. Another bullet drilled a hole within inches of where the president usually sits, the interior ministry reported.

In all, six bullets were reported to have hit the presidential car.

The interior ministry said in a statement to reporters that splintered glass and incendiary grenades were found unexploded at the scene of the attack.

CRUMPLED

The ministry said bursts of gunfire came from two cars parked on opposite sides of the road, catching de Gaulle's car in a crossfire, and witnesses reported there were several gunmen on foot firing from behind the parked cars.

Elysee Palace, the presidential residence in the heart of Paris, late Wednesday night issued a communique saying: "Several bursts of gunfire shattered the rear window of de Gaulle's car and shot out two tires."

SECRET ARMY

"We can only assume the attack was made by the European Secret Army," a police officer said.

The Secret Army Organization has been blamed for previous assassination plots designed to block de Gaulle's successful campaign for Algerian independence.

FOURTH ATTEMPT

The interior ministry announced that gunmen fired three bursts at the presidential sedan carrying de Gaulle, his wife and son-in-law to an airport outside Paris.

It was the fourth reported assassination attempt against the French president in less than a year.

One Dies At Train Crossing

EDMONTON (CP)—One man was killed and 17 persons injured Wednesday night when a CNR diesel train smashed into a three-ton dump truck at a municipal road crossing about six miles northeast of here.

RCMP at the scene withheld the name of the dead man. They said he was from another country and was the driver of the truck. The truck bore no company name.

Police said they believed none of the injuries was serious.

Twisted metal and other wreckage was scattered in a 50-yard radius and the tracks were torn from their ties. The train left the tracks and was tilted at a 45-degree angle.

"I don't know what had happened at first," said eye-witness Ernie Kowalski, 37, of Edmonton. "Then I saw police helping passengers from the overturned train. Those people were awfully lucky it didn't roll right over."

The single-car rail unit lay diagonally across the tracks as the injured were moved to a bus and ambulances which brought them to Edmonton hospitals.

Sewer Blasts Kill 4

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Four workmen were killed Wednesday when a series of explosions jarred a sewer tunnel 40 feet underground.

Firemen, probing through dense gas fumes, believed responsible for the blasts, removed the torn and burned bodies of two of the diggers by noon. The firemen looked their way through the narrow, 28-foot tunnel to recover the other bodies by mid-afternoon.

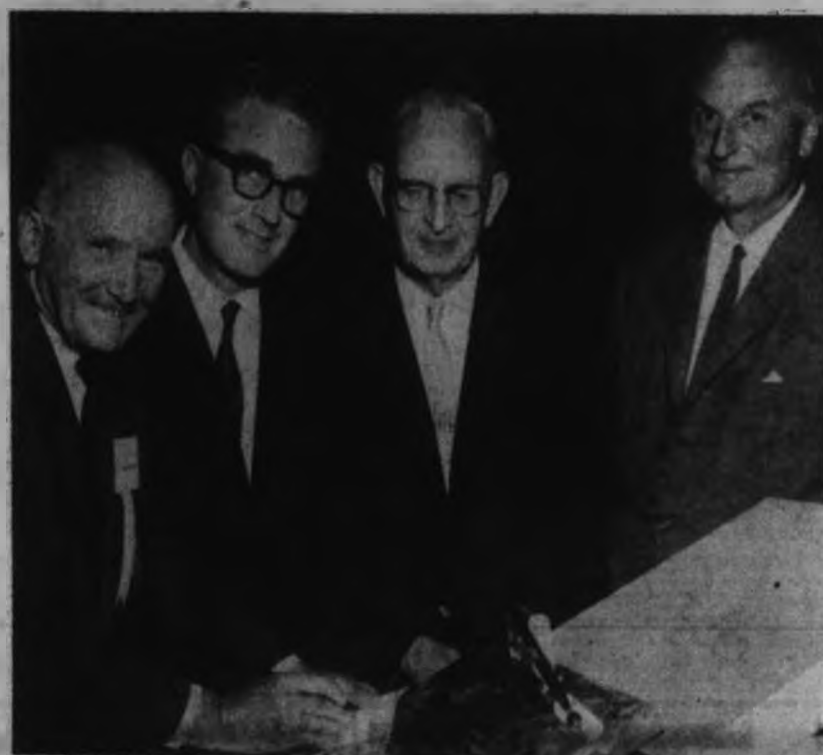

Authorities said they believe the fumes came from petroleum products which had soaked into the ground over the years. The area is near several petroleum company storage yards and refineries in an industrial section of south Philadelphia.

Dog Attacks Policeman

A Victoria motorcycle policeman was attacked by a German Shepherd dog while carrying out his duty last night. Constable Bill Harkin suffered a small laceration to his back. He was calling at 15th May Street at the time of the attack, trying to locate the owner of a parked car.

'Cure' Gets Chance To Conquer Cold

MONTREAL (CP)—Science, still looking for ways to fight the common cold, is giving a substance called interferon a chance to show what it can do.

British Scientist Alick Isaacs said Wednesday at the International Congress for Microbiology that interferon seems to give only short-term protection, however, in the early stages of a virus infection.

BETTER AS CURE

It would probably work better, therefore, as a "cure" than as preventive medicine.

Interferon was discovered by Dr. Isaacs and a colleague, Jean Lindenmann, during experiments with monkey gland tissues in London's Mill Hill Laboratory in 1957.

CONSIDER TREATMENT

Dr. Isaacs said experiments have just been started with interferon on the common cold. If they seemed to work, he would study the possibility of using interferon as a treatment.

Dr. Isaacs and Dorey Blaslovich of the Bratislava Virology Institute in Czechoslovakia said studies indicate that interferon is produced by a wide range of virus infections.

Golden Hawk Hits Pole Lands Safely

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP)—An RCAF Golden Hawk Sabre jet travelling at 650 miles an hour struck an iron pole here Wednesday in full view of 20,000 spectators at an air show. The plane, only slightly damaged, was brought safely to the ground immediately after the incident by pilot Flt.-Lt. Norman Carrick of Vancouver. He was uninjured.

The RCAF said an investigation has been launched and recommended Flt.-Lt. Carrick retain control of the jet fighter after it missed the 30-foot steel pole on an airport landing.

Enough Smallpox Serum For 15,000 in Province

VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbia now has enough smallpox vaccine to protect 15,000 persons as a precautionary measure because of the scare created by the illness of 14-year-old James Orr.

Eight more persons who travelled on a train with the family of the Orr boy have reported to health authorities, bringing to 10 the number of British Columbians involved.

Hitler Idol Of Caouette!

MONTREAL (CP)—Real Caouette, deputy national leader of the Social Credit party, is quoted in Le Magazine Maclean as saying that his political heroes are Mussolini and Hitler.

In an article by Helen Pitoe in the current issue of the magazine Mr. Caouette was asked: "Who are your political heroes of history?"

He replied "Mussolini and Hitler" and added:

"Fascism, like socialism and communism, is a dictatorship. Social Credit needs the liberty of the individual. I admire Mussolini's quality as a leader and I admire in Hitler his economic returns and I consider that he brought his people out of misery. I regret that he employed for war instead of for peace the ideas which he had."

"As for their dictatorial struggles and their racial struggles they have never been an example for me," he added.

"During the depression years," he said, "while we in Canada were in economic misery, these men brought prosperity to their countries."

"There is no question for me of admiring their racial policies. The extermination of Jews, for example, was anti-Christian. There is no question of following such policies."

Crash Kills City Boy

CARLYLE, Sask. (CP)—Richard Dixon, 9, of Victoria, was killed Wednesday in a two-car collision at an intersection of two municipal roads five miles west of this community, 115 miles southeast of Regina. RCMP said he was one of 10 children and two adults in one of the cars.

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy announced yesterday that two United States submarines have completed a "historic rendezvous" under the North Polar ice cap.

He said at a press conference he wanted to congratulate all involved in the feat.

After their under-ice meeting, the two submarines surfaced through an opening in the ice. The subs are the Skate and the Sea Dragon.

TELLS OF EXPLOITS

Kennedy opened the conference by announcing the exploits of the atomic submarines.

Asked about the Russian action in withdrawing its Berlin command, the president said the central theme of the U.S. response would be that the Soviet Union could not withdraw from responsibility in Berlin.

In response to a question about the Soviet Union's exploit of putting two men into orbit at the same time, Kennedy commented that "we are second to the Soviet Union in long-range boosters."

U.S. BEHIND

He said the U.S. will be behind for a while, but that before the end of the decade he expects it to be ahead. It is costing much money to catch up after a late start, he went on. The Soviet Union started with a lead and is determined to maintain it, he said, but the United States started late.

Anyone who tries to deny the U.S. is behind, he said, is deceiving the American people. But he said his administration is leading a vast effort to catch up, with a space budget as big as the last eight combined.

CONSIDER STEPS

Kennedy said the defence department is considering what steps might need to be taken for national security in the light of the recent twin-orbit feat of the Russians.

Kennedy was asked if he could guarantee that the $100,000,000 in United Nations bonds he wants Congress to vote to purchase would not be used to finance UN military action against Katanga province to force the secessionist province to rejoin the rest of the Congo.

The president replied that he felt the most important step to avoid chaos in the Congo would be for the two rival leaders, Katanga President Tshombe and national Premier Arouna, to reach an agreement.

Among other matters arising at the press conference: Foreign aid—A reporter asked whether countries which receive aid from the United States have a moral right to engage in business deals with Communist bloc countries.

Kennedy said there are countries receiving U.S. aid which also receive aid from the Communists, and he said it was not a moral issue, but one of judgment. In that connection he mentioned India and called it an extremely important free, non-Communist country.

SEE KHRUSHCHEV?

Khrushchev—Asked if he would see Premier Khrushchev, in event the Soviet leader comes to the United Nations session in New York this fall, Kennedy said he had made no plans but would hope to talk with him in such a case. He added that he considered it a good idea for heads of state to maintain relations.

Vandals Confess

Two juveniles questioned Tuesday night by Saanich authorities admitted breaking 10 windows in St. Aidan's Church Saturday night. (See story on Page 19.) Police said the boys, aged 9 and 10, were in the church when the windows were broken. A total of 123 windows were broken altogether in the Saturday night vandal raid.

France Joins Space Race

PARIS (UPI)—France plans to join the space race, the government announced last night.

Information Minister Alain Peyrefitte said France is scheduled to place a 180-pound satellite in orbit in March, 1965. It will be followed shortly by others three and four times as large, he said.

Army Fights Fires

MARSEILLE, France (Reuters)—Reinforcements were rushed here Wednesday to aid 2,000 troops and firemen battling fires to the east and north-west of Marseille that have destroyed hundreds of acres of forest, three small houses and several shops.

Firefighting headquarters said the worst outbreaks had been brought under control but they feared new outbreaks should hot, dry wind begin to blow.

Eastward, along the Riviera, another fire stopped vacation traffic on La Route Napoleon. Smaller fires raged near the town of Collobrières, and paratroopers joined firemen fighting fires since Tuesday night in the western Pyrenees near Saint-Michel de Cuxa.

UN Budget $86,649,500

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—Acting Secretary General U Thant yesterday submitted a budget estimate of $86,649,500 for the United Nations in 1963.

The estimate represented an increase of $4,044,700 above appropriations for 1962.

Thant reported a UN deficit of $111,200,000 at the end of 1961, when cash resources amounted to $14,000,000 and total liabilities to $125,200,000.

Royal Children In Sailing Class

INVERNESS, Scotland (Reuters)—The Queen's two eldest children, Prince Charles and Princess Anne, stepped onto the shores of Loch Ness Wednesday at the end of a five-day lesson in seamanship from their ex-sailor father, Prince Philip.

They came ashore at the conclusion of a 23-mile sail down the equally Loch Ness, where the young royals had been with their 16-year-old cousin Prince Karl-Gustaf of Sweden, who has been the guest of Britain's Royal Family during their current Scottish vacation.
